ROYAL NAVY

Command Of The Dundee

(Special Air Mail Service)
London, July 29.

The sloop Dundee, Captain W. H. G. Fallowfield, which has just paid a visit to New York, is ordered to leave Halifax, Nova Scotia, on October 4 for Portsmouth, where she should arrive 10 days later to recommission. Her present ship's company joined on March 23, 1933. Captain Fallowfield, who has commanded her throughout the present commission, will be succeeded by Captain J. H. Edleston, who since April has been supervising the completion of the cruiser Galatea at the works of the Scott's Shipbuilding and Engineering Company, Greenock. The Dundee is to return to Bermuda about November 16.

Captain Edleston served during the War as lieutenant in the cruisers Yarmouth and Champion, and graduated at the Staff College in 1922. His first staff appointment was to the Delhi, in which he served with Rear-Admiral the Hon. Sir Hubert Brand during the world cruise of the Special Service Squadron. In 1928 he was appointed to the staff at the Staff College. His last sea appointment was as executive officer of the cruiser London in 1930-32.

TWO VILLAGES DESTROYED

Sea Of Dead Bodies

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)
Milan, Aug. 14.

A terrible picture of desolation was presented by the district around Orta on Wednesday. Tuesday's torrent transformed the ground into one great morass in which dead bodies of human beings and animals lie strewn amongst the broken furniture swept out from the ruined houses. The Villages of Molare and Caprietta were almost completely destroyed while in Ovada itself 130 houses have been entirely demolished.

Rescue work was commenced immediately and is being continued throughout the night but was greatly hampered by the deep mud caused by the passage of water while renewed cloud bursts added to the difficulties.

THE CHOICE OF AUTUMN COLOURS

Range That Will Bewilder Women

Never have colours been better appreciated and understood than to-day, writes a correspondent. The range is so great that it has become difficult to choose the right shade. Consider the varied tones in blue alone. Our best plan here is to begin with dark navy and work up to sky, merging in the faded blue-grey sea shade.

Pink has suddenly become fashionable. As with blue, the range seems endless. Coral colour is a leader and there are many graduated tones even in coral. The very palest is easy to wear. The deep shrimp shade is equally trying. A real tone is easier.

the holiday suit-case. Again, it is rather an odd combination, like black and grey, the Parisian favourite.

MORE BLACK AND WHITE

All black still continues to make appeal, even on the hottest day. Nothing is cooler than a soft, thin, black crepe or stiffened lace frock worn with a plain white straw hat. Long white gloves can make it a party dress. Whatever colour is worn, should the dress be at all elaborate, the hat chosen will be simple, or vice versa.

Natural straw hats give a smart air to blue and pink ensembles with shoes of linen or fabric that match the shade of the hat. Big black hats, plain and charmingly poised, look their best with white broderie-anglaise frocks, or coral-pink organdy.

Black and white is seen more than ever for chiffon, crepe, and figured linen. Plain black skirts in taffeta or satin are worn with short boleros or swing-back coats of white pique.

The jockey cap beret of white bengaline or dull satin is cheered by a black fly-away veil. The crownless haloes of flowers or feathers continue along with still newer "freak" fashions for late summer. Real blossoms are not very satisfactory, yet the vogue is an insistent one. Brown ostrich fading into beige, with a dash of yellow, composed a charming crownless toque, with a black bandeau of yellow leaves outlined with ostrich. This was worn with a simple brown crepe frock, the neck-line of which was cut in a small round encircled with yellow and brown flowers.

Carnations of flame and red shades are favourites for the tailored buttonhole as carnations are more lasting flowers.

A red and white crepe with a loose swaggar coat, finished with a red cotton and silk cluster of carnations, looked delightful surmounted by a shady white straw hat, trimmed with two carnations resting in the curve of a brim.

PEARLY TINTS

China-rose-pink is successful shot with heliotrope for the evening. Taffeta always takes on shot effects well. Fabrics of satin surface and shaded chiffons are also lovely in this colour. Pearly-grey satins merge into blues and greens. A thick creamy satin backed with gold is good with a brown velvet cape trimmed with golden fox. A halo-cap of gold is held on the collar by crossing straps of black velvet.

The hydrangea collection inspires the colour enthusiast at this season of the year. This includes a wide range of blues and pinks. The blue of the hydrangea is easier to wear than most of the delphinium range.

Fabrics can make or mar a colour. The rich damasks and velvets are ideal for tones taken from field, mountain, woods and gardens, but the thinner summer materials are best in lighter shades. The modern dyes and designer borrow freely from nature, but to-day crude colourings are not tolerated. A colour may be strong and fiery but not crude.

CRAZE FOR STYLES

"Percale" Special

Who started this craze for shiny chintz? In pairs it is "percale" which has a lighter character and fits perfectly into the summer seaside picture. It brings a fresh quality to lounging styles.

Imagine cordie trousers of floral printed percale, with an orange sunback top, the addition of a semi-fitted tailored plain white jacket, and little rolling basque set off by a yellow muffin-disc hat perched perkily forward over one eye!

Lounging styles have become so elegant that the word "pyjama" is now almost anathema. Pyjamas do exist, of course, but their introduction is rare in connection with beach wear. Shorts-suits replace them, and, as you already know, are covered by wrap-to skirts.

PLAIN COLOURS

One simple idea which looks very smart is the suit of checked gingham with one of the plain colours chosen from the check in cotton crepe for a mid calf length skirt.

skirt, just buttoned at the waist and meeting down the centre front. Some beach shorts are independent of skirts and separated from tailored sunback tops. One attractive model of this type is in light ginger-coloured linen, and the white swim-suit completing the outfit meant that the shorts were for after-bathing. This is another new idea replacing pyjamas, and it might develop into mid calf length frocks or those with ankle and ground length skirts.

Percale comes into this special lounging category for beaches or country gardens. Little handbags for your knitting or other etceteras are made from the fabric. These lounging frocks and gowns invariably have sunback openings, and in some instances change from floral patterned to spotted percale. An attractive print is of brown with a tiger lily design, used for a gown, showing a squared front and low-cut V back.

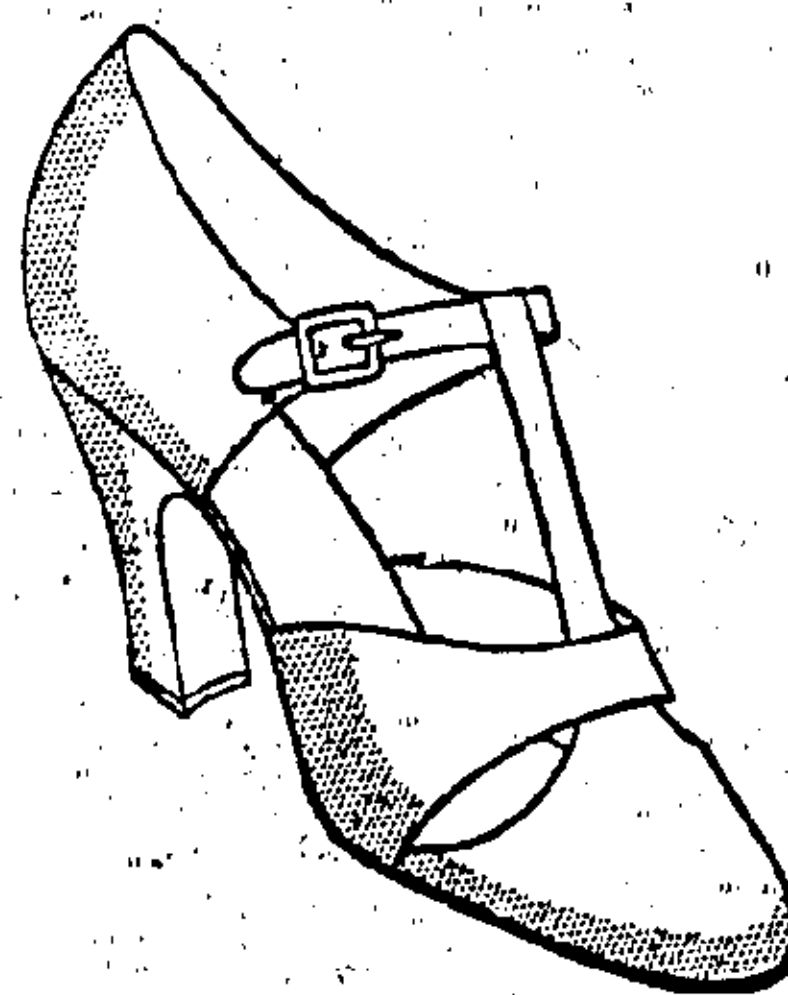

Frocks may be a plain vivid colour, worn with floral printed percale dressing gowns cut on the simplest mannish plan. This is a Schiaparelli idea, which she completes by a duncap of vivid green tent canvas to match the frock, while the handbag matches the dressing-gown.

All apple green as a suggestion for bronze bodies is excellent. If you can bronze to the tint of brown he suggests, you will have taken on the hue of a South Sea Island belle. Sea shells can be worn round an ankle, a wrist and neckline.

HOW TO APPLY LIPSTICK

Not twenty per cent of the habitual users of lipstick know the correct way to apply it. Used crudely it can become, not a beauty aid, but a definite blemish.

The ideal mouth has a slight upward tilt at the corners which a depressed mouth has not. To improve the shape therefore a slight touch of rouge should be placed at the corners of the upper lip. It is thus properly shaped, press the upper and lower lips firmly together to show you where to rouge the lower one—then just follow the line left from the upper colouring and work the lip-stick well in with the finger.

BEAUTY HINTS

Ann Harding says that a nail without polish is much better looking than a nail with cracked polish. While lack of time or inexperience may prevent the replacing of old polish, one can always take the necessary second to remove it, leaving the nail clean.

If your eyes are blue, Ginger Rogers suggests that you try a slate-colored eye shadow for day-time wear.

If you wear a short bob, be sure you have the hair trimmed frequently at the neckline, advises Irene Dunne. This gives the effect of a sculptured line and prevents any appearance of untidiness.

Soap and water and liquid cleansers which do not have an oil base should be used to cleanse the too oily skin, says Helen Mack. Using this treatment, cleanse the skin at least twice a day.

To prevent smudging, always apply mascara last of all when putting on your make-up, advises Miriam Hopkins.

If you "go in" for outdoor sports, and don't feel it is quite appropriate to use much make-up, try a lip-salve instead of a lip-rouge to prevent chapping, advises Arne Shirley.

WHEN AGE DECIDES

One's age was formerly a guide to the use of a colour. There are still tones for the debutante that should not be infringed upon, such as a gay pink (the best from a Victorian list) or the middle-coral tone referred to, a pale turquoise, a sky blue, apple green, lavender-mauve and a primrose yellow. The pastel tones of less colourful trend will admirably become the older woman. And we must not forget the popular greens, beiges, browns and hunter's greens for every-day wear.

Both Paris and London have revived "tulle." It is a very clever colour, and good for the later summer-tailored suit in a wide ribbed silk and wool or in a wool canvas mixture. This banana-sort or yellow-green is a smart choice, but not for the young girl. Another pleasing point is that either black, brown or white accessories are good with this curious shade, so becoming to the owner of very dark or brilliant red hair.

Toned down a little, tulle will come into the autumn tweed list. Beige and red is another good mixture, and will find favour for

SUMMER

NEW COLOUR CHART SMART WOMEN WHAT THE STARS LONDON NOTES

Study By Beauty Specialists What They Wear Fashion Favourite British Woollen Materials

The autumn fashion colour palette, with its attractive groups of dress shades and colourings, is responsible for a new and interesting technique in beauty secrets concerning the complexion, writes a correspondent. Beauty specialists have brought their scientific knowledge of colour to a fine art in their latest idea of creating an "adapted" complexion, which makes it possible for a woman to wear any colour she likes with complete success, although hitherto certain colours may not have been considered becoming to her type of beauty and colouring.

COMPLEXIONS TO TONE

Adapted complexions are achieved by much the same technique in colour that an artist uses to "compose" the colour tones in a woman's portrait. Flesh tints and complexion colours may be enhanced, cheeks and lips brightened or softened in tint and tone to ensure complete harmony in the finished picture—in which the frock usually plays an important part also. True the painter is allowed to exercise an artistic discretion in interpreting the colour of the dress not permitted to the beauty specialist when creating a complexion which shall be in harmony with the colouring of a particular frock worn, while still retaining an individual beauty of type and colouring. The artistic triumph is all the greater for the beauty specialist.

The complementary colour guide is a safe rule in choosing make-up when wearing shades of green. For the rich, soft Vagabond and Rifle Green, with their complementary yellows, or for the new Pinetree Green a tinge of orange or flame may be introduced in rouge and lipstick. The powdering may also be warmer in tone, while still keeping its delicate complexion tints. In this way complexion can be toned up to new colours which some women find difficult to wear.

This autumn will see some fascinating and rather unusual shades of purple. There is Berry Bloom, like the lovely purplish white bloom seen on hedgerow roses, and two other interesting shades, a soft egg plant hue and a new Spanish purple. To wear these colours successfully, complexions with the slightest tendency to sallowness should be allowed an accented tinge of rose, a complementary colour in purple, in the rouge and lipstick, while the powder used should be slightly pinker than is usually chosen.

Snow shadow aptly describes a wonderful new ice-like blue, which will prove highly becoming to some types, and in others need some artistic help in make-up. There is a new viola shade in lipstick and rouge in which a faint tinge of softening blue is blended with the roseate hue. The result is excellent with blue or grey dress tones, and makes a subtle difference in the skin tints when required.

Many dress colours are easier to wear when a harmoniously thought-out make-up is achieved. There is a vivid new rowanberry scarlet which requires a dashing tint of orange for lipstick and rouge. Here the chosen complexion powder can be gipsyish, or a more sophisticated tint of deep ivory. Coraline, another new dress colour needs much the same type of complexion.

A WATTEAU TYPE

The pastel group of dress colours, either for day or evening wear, requires a slightly accented make-up, whether worn by dark or fair women. There is an exquisite new colour, Pink Lilac, which needs a peach-bloom skin. Pink Ash is the type of pink usually associated with the beauties of the Watteau period with their delicate cream and roses complexions.

Browns demand the richer colouring found among brunettes with clear creamy looking skins and deep, carmine lips. Brown is mainly an easy colour for the distinct blonde or brunette; but not so easy for the "betwixt and between"—the medium blondes and brunettes—to wear.

This is where the beauty expert steps in with subtle touches from her beauty palette. There is a charcoal rouge and lipstick which, used with a dark rachel complexion powder, will certainly place the rich dark browns which are to be worn this autumn among the most becoming colours of the new season.

New York—For sports—for town—in all colours, including the new popular lilac and duobonnet—linen has become the fabric leader. Smart women are wearing dressy as well as active sports creations of this crisp, attractive material; and they do it with no misgivings because modern linens won't wrinkle like the old-time goods and are fade and shrink-proof, too.

There are uncrushable linens that hold pleats and look as fresh at five in the afternoon as they did at nine in the morning. Most of them are in rough, nubby weaves that closely resemble interesting woollens and tweeds. They lend themselves particularly to active sports frocks and to tailored suits for business.

Two styles predominate among suits. Single-breasted models mold the figure and lend themselves well to blouses with soft fulls at the throat. The double-breasted designs are to be worn with strictly tailored blouses, flat-heeled oxfords and hats with sports brims.

EYES FOR BEAUTY

You wouldn't dream of going out with a dirty face, but do you remember to wash your eyes? They should be bathed in lukewarm water at least once a day, to remove the grit and dust which are often responsible for cloudy, dull-looking eyes.

Then, if you want to make the most of them, don't rub your eyes. This is bad for the sight; bad, too, because the rubbing stretches the soft skin of the lids and produces wrinkles.

If you already have those spidery laughter lines round your eyes, you can prevent them becoming deep wrinkles by dabbing the skin dry after washing, then patting in some almond oil or skin food.

BLACK ACCESSORIES

If you want to be especially chic on no. days, select a pink linen suit, white blouse, black and white shoes, white gloves, pink linen hat with black band and either a plain white or black purse. Another nice combination uses a duobonnet linen suit or dress as a nucleus, turquoise blouse or ascot, turquoise hat with duobonnet band, white shoes and gloves. Touches of lime green are nice with the new tones of lilac. So are yellow, brown with white polka dots and deep purple.

Frocks of linen come in all the popular styles, including plain shirt-waist, buttoned-down-front an simple two-pieces with blouses to be worn over the hips or tucked into the skirt. They have all the exquisite tucked and pleated details usually found in silk dresses of the better varieties. They are as well tailored as your favourite spring or fall suit, yet can be washed and ironed as easily as a kitchen apron. They save dry cleaning bills and they make you look fresh and crisp as a field flower, dripping with morning dew. This summer, no wardrobe is complete without at least one linen ensemble.

Fashion Favourite

The latest thing in sophisticated lounging ensembles is worn by Katharine Hepburn in her latest RKO Radio Picture, "Break of Hearts." It is a two piece model of dull gold metallic woolen with trimmings of rust velvet. The full-length coat, fashioned like a gentleman's smoking jacket, has deep flared cuffs and wide reverses of rust velvet, diagonally quilted. The lounging pajamas have wide trouser legs and a simply tailored top. A scarf, cowed at the throat, and a carelessly knotted girdle at the waist, are of the gold, metal fabric.

SPRING COSTUME

A jacket frock which is ideal for early Spring wear under a coat and very smart for street wear when the coat is discarded is the one chosen by Maxine Jennings, beautiful model worn in RKO Radio Pictures' "Roberta." Deep blue novelty weave silk is used to create the skirt and hip-length jacket and a gay blue and white print makes the short-sleeved bodice, which has an attractive ruching-edged shawl collar. This shawl collar is worn outside the jacket, which fastens with several small self-covered buttons.

THREE PIECE CAPE SUIT

A clever three-piece suit worn by Lola Lane, recently featured in RKO Radio Picture "Murder on a Honeymoon," is one of this season's fashion favourites. Brown and white plaid wool is used for the seven-eighths length cape which features a wide notched collar. The tailored skirt and collarless hip-length jacket are made of brown shetland wool. A white felt hat, white silk ascot scarf, and brown and white sport opera add a distinctive note to the outfit.

UNUSUAL COCKTAIL ENSEMBLE

Hat-straw for a cocktail coat and to trim a gown—that is the unusual fabric selected by Bernard Newman, world-famous designer, for one of the ensembles worn by Ginger Rogers in RKO Radio's "Star of Midnight." The black, double-breasted coat, cut in the Directoire style, fastens with jet buttons. The frock of black novelty weave crepe has short sleeves trimmed with ruffles of the hat straw, extending from the sleeve edge to the shoulders and edging the neck. This neck ruffle is worn outside the coat, forming a charming frame for Miss Rogers' face. The same fabric forms the brimless turban which is trimmed with a cocky bow of self-material.

DELIGHTFUL PARTY FROCK

Now that Spring is upon us, the younger generation is just as excited as their mothers and big sisters about that new wardrobe. June Preston, RKO Radio Pictures' cherubic child contract player, is delighted with her new Spring party frock of French blue dotted organdie. White and red smocking high on the bodice supply the fullness necessary for the all-around pleating of the frock, which features little white organdie ruffles covering the shoulders and a white organdie ruffled Peter Pan collar.

REGAL EVENING GOWN

White metallic satin that looks like frosted silver is used in the creation of the regal evening gown worn by lovely Irene Dunne when she sings the haunting "Smoke Gets In Your Eyes" in RKO Radio Pictures' "Roberta." A daring treatment in design fashions the bodice which is formed by two shirred bands of the material crossing front and back. The skirt is straight in front and has an inserted panel in back ending in a graceful, sweeping train. A jeweled tiara of diamonds and rubies is worn by Miss Dunne with the gown, making her look every inch the princess she portrays in the film.

British Woollen Materials

New woollen materials for the autumn are in colourful designs and show pleasing changes on those of previous years. There is distinction in the design, and while colours are rich they are not raw. Beige is being replaced in a number of colour blendings by banana, which is mellow and rich looking.

There are attractive novelties in the new Sweetinburgh collection of British woollens, many of which have been already chosen by leading French and American as well as English houses for their autumn models. A cloth called "Bengal Lancer," striped diagonally in effects suggested by the colours of the turban, is one of the successes. As the stripe is vivid there is a plain cloth which can be allied with it, and this cloth is not a solid colour but has a pleasant haze on the surface owing to its contrast base; what appears to be a plain green, for instance, is backed in brown. Many striking effects in suits can be secured by the use of the gay striped cloths with the hazy coloured cloths. One of the most attractive groups of stripings is in French "brocade" blue allied with brick and brown. A natural or "porridge" stripe is common to all the striped cloths.

Another novelty is a fringed cloth which is woven double and the top cut in terraces of fringe which do not lose their firmness. This is a beautiful cloth woven from a very expensive yarn, and is in two weights, the heavy coating weight being designed so that it requires no fur trimming; it is in terra-cotta, myrtle-green, vandyke-brown, wallflower-red, and prunus.

WINDOW PANE DESIGN

A "window-pane" design is in a two-colour cloth for suits. Banana is the second colour forming the pattern and is allied with cypress-green (a lovely midnight-green that is a feature of the autumn colour range); brown, navy, maroon, and black. This cloth has a plain companion cloth to match, so that a three-quarter coat of the window-pane design can have a skirt in the plain colour. An amusing design called "The Thirty-nine Steps" has an effect of stairs and is in lovely rich colours—lavender and brown.

green and banana, brown and banana, sap-green and brown, brown and natural, and navy and lavender.

There is not as much design in new autumn dress cloths as in suitings and coatings. Quieter effects make them easier to wear with a variety of coats. One of the novelties in dress weights is a bark cloth with a crinkled surface in a firm weave—not a crepe. This is in all the leading colours. There are some attractive dress weight plaids woven with over-checks of lighter or darker shades, these are specially good in coral, scarlet, and lavender on beige, and in coral, spring-green, and lavender on beige, and are among the few cloths in which beige is used in preference to banana. Another dress novelty has a design like a telephone arm in two colour contrasts such as lilac-green on dark myrtle gold on cranberry, and white on black.

There is life in all of these uses of colour, which are original without being blatant.

EASY CLOTHES

Easy clothes are chiefly made of wool, largely because this crushes least and because it meets most kinds of weather, writes M. H. in the "Manchester Guardian." Taffetas is, however, a good accessory in that it is also uncrushable that it stays in position, and it provides the bow without which no dress is complete at the moment. The use of taffetas probably reaches its highest point in blouses, where it provides garment and bow all in one. Blouses are made on tunic lines to wear over the skirt, because they then have an air of completion when worn with a skirt in the house. Their really important feature is the neck, which will show from under a coat, and with this right the rest does not matter much. Yoked blouses are frequent and they admit easily of turned-down collars, huge ties and bows, together with the material in various contrasting directions. Instead of a yoke there may be a much-glorified Raglan effect, the radiating lines of which also serve to cut up the checks and plaids of the taffetas. Sometimes tucks or darts radiate from the neck, tapering off into nothing. These are effective in increasing the interest of the neck. Huge revers also play a prominent role and the edges are often decorated so that when they fall into folds the decoration is concentrated and shows through the coat opening. Pockets plastered on almost anywhere, trim a taffetas blouse when nothing else is available.

CINEMA TRADE NOTICES

DARING YOUNG MAN

James Dunn goes to jail to-day at the Fox Film actor will not alone in his incarceration however, as Mae Clarke, Warren Hymer, Sidney Toler, Jack La Rue, Raymond Hatton and other well-known screen players will accompany him; at least for part of his sentence.

Since Dunn and the others are prisoners only for the sake of art, their fans need not worry over their imprisonment. It is all for a hilarious sequence in "The Daring Young Man," the romantic comedy of newspaper life which opens to-day at the King's Theatre.

Dunn's jail-going is done on the order of his editor, who wants to get an "inside story" on what is really going on within the prison walls.

William A. Seiter directed "The Daring Young Man," which, in addition to those mentioned, has Neil Hamilton, Madge Bellamy, Arthur Treacher and Frank Melton in the supporting cast. William Hurlbut wrote the screen play from the original story by Claude Binyon and Sidney Skolsky.

THE RIGHT TO LIVE

George Brent should know a beautiful woman when he sees one for beginning with his first big screen role opposite Ruth Chatterton in "The Right to Live," showing to-day at the Alhambra. Brent has been leading man for many of the screen's most beautiful stars.

He has shared honours with Barbara Stanwyck in several pictures, notably "The Purchase Price," with Joan Blondell he made "Miss Pinkerton." Loretta Young appeared opposite Brent in "They Call It Sin." Bela Daniels and Ruby Keeler were with him in "42nd Street."

Greta Garbo personally demanded that Brent be her leading man in "The Painted Veil." Myrna Loy and he were an admirable team in "The Stamboul Quest." He played with both Bette Davis and Ann Dvorak in "Housewife."

In "The Right to Live," Brent appears opposite Josephine Hutchinson whom he terms one of the most talented of newer players.

The picture is an intensely dramatic story with an unusual romance in which two brothers love the same woman. The picture is based on the stirring drama, "Sacred Flame" by Somerset Maugham, author of "The Painted Veil" and "Of Human Bondage."

NAUGHTY MARIETTA

Haunting music of Victor Herbert, blended with thundering drama of the founding of a great city, and with a delicate love romance running through it, such is "Naughty Marietta," spectacular translation to the screen of Victor Herbert's masterpiece, playing at the Oriental Theatre on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Jeanette MacDonald, who never was more beautiful nor sang so divinely, and Nelson, Eddy, young operatic baritone, who makes his debut as a screen hero with a performance that indicates he is on the screen to stay, head an elaborate cast.

The story is staged on a spectacular scale, gorgeous costumes, and intense dramatic action enlivening such song hits as "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," "I'm Falling Love with Someone," "Gamsone," "The Italian Street Song," and other immortal Herbert music.

W. S. Van Dyke, directing injected many deft touches of artistry into the romance of the French princess who fled to New Orleans to escape a state marriage, and there found romance in a young English army officer.

A specially elaborate cast surrounds the two principals, including Elsa Lancaster (Mrs. Charles), Frank Morgan, Comedy is provided by Edward Brophy and Harold Huber.

Gorgeous photography by William Daniels, and masterful handling of the orchestra by Herbert Stothart do much to enhance the glowing Herbert masterpiece, hailed as one of the five greatest operas ever composed.

WING'S IN THE DARK

I saw the pre-view of this somewhat far-fetched flying melodrama at the Queen's recently. It is a most entertaining film full of well-staged aerial thrills. Myrna Loy is a trick pilot and Cary Grant is also an aviator who has invented a device for "blind" flying. He is blinded in an accident before this invention is tested. Myrna undertakes a non-stop flight from Moscow to New York and loses her bearings in a fog off the American Coast. Whereupon Cary Grant goes up in a plane and guides her to the Airport by means of his invention.

Both Cary Grants and Myrna Loy's performances are excellent and the film is well worth seeing.

PUBLIC HERO NO. 1

A Thriller

I attended a pre-view of an amazing thriller, entitled "Public Hero No. 1," and for a fast moving and exciting story there has not been anything to approach it. This picture will be released soon at the Queen's Theatre, and I advise all who like excitement not to miss seeing "Public Hero No. 1."

For some time past, the film fan has been shown a glut of pictures depicting or rather glorifying the gangsters in their battle of wits (and guns) against representatives of the law, with usually the latter having the worst of the encounters. "Public Hero No. 1" as the title leads one to believe, still travels over old ground, but this is important, it glorifies the law and not the gangsters. It is absolutely full of tense scenes in which machine guns and revolvers are matched against machine guns and revolvers, and the amount of rounds (blank of course) that must have been expended during the filming of this picture, must run into the thousands.

Not only are the "battle" scenes exciting to the extreme, but they are so realistic. This is where the picture scores so heavily. Everything—the gun scenes, with a desperate breakaway as a climax, and the subsequent movements of the leader of the "Purple Gang" in company of a Federal agent, who had gained the confidence of the former by impersonating a "crook"—are remarkable for their sustained interest.

Chester Morris could not have been casted in a better role, which I think is the finest I have seen him in yet to date. While to Lionel Barrymore, the chief honours must go for his characterisation of a drunken doctor, who is in the employ of the gangsters to "patch" them up after the many scraps they have with the Police. His performance is well nigh perfect.

Jean Arthur, in spite of the galaxy of talent around her, is not overshadowed in the least. Her portrayal was splendid, and just lent that air of romance and "soft stuff" to relieve the tensions that might otherwise become too prolonged.

I strongly recommend this picture. Finally I think I am right in saying that the scenes depicting the capture of the leader of the "Purple Gang," are what actually occurred when Dillinger was finally brought to justice in real life. This in itself should be a sufficient guarantee of the grimness of the picture—"Redneck."

CAUGHT NAPPING

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 29. The Government majority in the House of Commons yesterday reached a new low level. On Naval Review day last week it fell to 45. Yesterday it slumped to 29.

A late sitting on Thursday combined with the sunny weather to keep M.P.s away at the beginning of yesterday's sitting.

The result was that when Sir Stafford Cripps forced a "snap division" soon after the sitting began the Government could only muster 60 against the Opposition's 31.

These "snap divisions" prove nothing and have no results. They have been rare of recent years because the Government majority has been too large to give

BRITAIN'S NAVAL POLICY

Only Hope Of Limitation

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 29. Viscount Cecil of Chelwood asked in the House of Lords yesterday what was meant by the abandonment of a policy of programmes in reference to naval limitation.

Lord Londonderry, Lord Privy Seal, replying for the Government, said during the conversation with the United States and Japanese representatives beginning in October, 1934, His Majesty's Government reached the conclusion that it would not be possible to make any agreement in replacement of the Washington and London Naval Treaties, which contained an expression of the principle of ratios of naval strength.

In the opinion of His Majesty's Government, the only hope of preserving some form of quantitative limitation lay in eliminating from any future treaty figures which appeared to constitute a ratio as between the various signatory Powers, and to substitute for these existing engagements on that point a system under which each Power would give a voluntary and unilateral declaration of its construction programme for a period of years—say 1937-1942.

NOT CONTRACTUAL OBLIGATIONS

It was proposed that these declarations should not have the force or form of contractual obligations. Nevertheless, the construction figures appearing in the programmes would require to be concerted beforehand between the Powers, and it would further be necessary that each Power should undertake in its declaration not to modify its announced building programme without giving previous notice of, say, at least one year to other Powers making similar declarations.

"This proposal," said Lord Londonderry, "was made to the Japanese and United States representatives before they returned to their countries, and has been described to the other signatories of the Washington Treaty."

"There has been no change in the policy of His Majesty's Government, who, so far as they are concerned, would gladly see a continuation of the system of limitation embodied in the Washington Treaty, but, if we are to avoid a race in naval armaments after the naval treaties have come to an end in 1936, account must obviously be taken of the desires and susceptibilities of countries holding other views."

CERTAIN GUARANTEES

"The purpose of His Majesty's Government in recent negotiations has been to evolve, in consultation with those Powers, a system of limitation which, while avoiding the expression of contractual form of a definite relationship of naval strength between the various naval Powers, would offer certain guarantees against the resumption of unrestricted and competitive building."

"In addition to this proposal for quantitative limitations to replace those in the treaties which expire on December 31, 1936."

the tactics any reasonable chance of success.

The last successful snap division was in 1930 when the Labour Government were defeated by five votes on the Education Bill.

SIR SEYMOUR HICKS

Tribute By Friends

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 29. Six hundred of their friends gave a complimentary luncheon at the Dorchester yesterday to Sir Seymour Hicks and Lady Hicks (Miss Ellaline Terriss) to celebrate the Knighthood which the King recently conferred upon Sir Seymour.

Mr. J. H. Thomas proposed the toast of the day, and he said to the guests of honour:

"His Majesty the King has honoured you, we are proud of the honour, and we say to you, Seymour and Ella: Thank you for your past services. May you live long to bring still further great happiness and joy to millions of people who love you in this country and would like to be present here."

Sir Seymour, who was deeply moved when he rose to speak, revealed that at the beginning of the war when he was in danger of bankruptcy his wife threw in all her money and gave him £15,000 worth of jewellery to save him.

"I have given it back to her, and now there is a trustee guarding it so that I shall never take it away again." (Laughter and cheers.)

On such occasions, he remarked, people were supposed to say, "I don't so much mind about myself, it's for my wife."

"But," declared Sir Seymour, "I do mind. I do mind very much. I like it tremendously and I think it's grand."

Sir Seymour recalled that he started life as a call boy. "But," he continued, leaving to better himself, I became an undertaker's mate."

"This job came to a sudden end. I was walking behind a hearse when I heard a band playing in the distance, and absent-mindedly, opened the door and called out: 'The overture begins, please.'"

MR. THOMAS'S JEST

Mr. Thomas raised a great laugh by referring to his listeners as "fellow-actors."

For 48 years Sir Seymour had occupied and adorned the stage.

"You have both played a great and noble part in a great profession. You have given happiness as well as amusement to millions of people, and in the hour of distress you have never hesitated to give your services."

Lady Hicks also thanked the company, saying: "I have been with you all and have known you all for many years, and I can say to you that I have had such a happy day as I never had before."

In the absence through ill-health of the Earl of Derby, Sir Noel Curtis-Bennett presided.

Lady Curtis-Bennett presented to Lady Hicks a bouquet of 42 roses, one for every year of her married life.

LANGUAGES AND COMMERCE

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 29. It would appear almost that to the problems concerning what languages should have pride of place in the secondary schools there is no real solution. The issue is no longer clearcut. It is not a question of ancient versus modern, but concerns rather the amount that can be done within the school lifetime of the over-age pupil in the secondary departments. Recently the Committee on Modern Languages set up by the British Association for Commercial and Industrial Education issued a report. The scope of the inquiry which this Committee undertook was clearly defined.

Starting with the recommendations of the Prime Minister's Committee on Modern Studies (1918) and with those of the Committee on Education for Salesmanship (1930), this body, composed as to about half its members of persons interested mainly in business, proceeded to consider how the methods could be improved, giving prospective and active recruits to commerce a competent knowledge of modern languages and an acquaintance with the civilisation and nature of the peoples using these languages.

They asked a large number of important firms engaged in trade and industry whether they were dissatisfied with the qualifications in foreign languages of their staff educated in this country. They inquired to what extent men who have gained skill in the use of foreign languages derived benefit either financially or otherwise, and they sought to find what languages should, in their opinion, be included in the system of general education which precedes employment and in the system of specialised education for those who have entered employment.

INTERESTING REPORT

In the report there is much that is of interest, though comparatively little that is novel. We get, for example, the impression that quantitatively the number needed business who know foreign languages really well is, comparatively, not large. We are assured by the reporters that "commercial" French or German or Spanish ought not to be taught while the pupil is still at school, a point of view that will be generally accepted. Furthermore, from the replies received it became clear that far too little attention is paid to German, and that the number of pupils taking Spanish is all too small. The report, while not minimising the importance of the study of French, tended to deplore the tradition that made it the first modern language to be studied.

But when the Committee came to deal with the amount that could be studied and what languages should be taken they were clearly in a dilemma. It is, in fact, almost impossible within the normal curriculum to begin three languages simultaneously and keep them going right through the secondary course. Inevitably, therefore, they were driven back on the desirability of dropping altogether, a classical language.

VALUE OF KNOWLEDGE

Faced with this the Committee expressed themselves as reluctant to make any recommendation on the adoption of which would have the effect of diminishing the importance attached to the study of Latin, since they were convinced of the educational value of knowledge of a classical tongue, and civilisation. That being so, they somewhat, albeit concluded that, nevertheless, many pupils would derive great benefit from the study of two modern languages.

On a matter of this nature it is unwise to dogmatise. Much depends upon the facilities in the school; much upon the ability of the pupil; a great deal upon the pressure of other subjects. In some schools it is hardly possible to arrange a curriculum that can have more than two language subjects. But in others where the resources are adequate genuine attempts are being made to do what this Committee desire. We are at one with them in stressing the importance of oral work and of making the study of modern languages as realistic as possible.

GENUINE AVENUE

But for commerce the genuine avenue of advance lies through the commerce colleges set up for after-school study. In practically every city in Great Britain the facilities are abundantly provided, and it is to these colleges rather than to the schools that we should look for advance in reference to language study for commercial purposes. Much, too, could be done by fostering day classes for employees. To expect the schools to turn out pupils of high quality in two modern languages, in addition to the study of a classical language, is to ask for something that within the scope of the daily round in the schools is barely possible. It is more than significant that when faced with the central fact of the matter—viz., the dropping altogether of study of the classics—this Committee, composed largely of men of eminence in the business world, decided against recommending any such course of action.

A ROYAL CRADLE

Loan By The Queen

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 29.

To the many Royal relics in the London Museum, most of which have been the gifts or loans of King and Queen, a notable addition has now been made. The Queen has lent a cradle which was used for three generations of the Royal family. Made for Queen Victoria's eldest daughter in 1840 and used for all her other children, it was given first to Queen Alexandra, as Princess of Wales, for her children, and subsequently to the Queen, when Duchess of York in 1894, and used for all her family.

This cradle, or swing-cot, stands 7ft. high and is of mahogany ornamented with gilt and with inset panels of embroidered satin. Mattress, pillow, and brocade hangings complete it.

The Museum already has on loan from the King three other cradles, of which one, of late seventeenth-century German workmanship in carved and gilded wood, was also used for the children of Queen Victoria—at earlier ages to judge from its size. Another is the cradle, with hangings and coverlet, made for Princess Amelia, the youngest child of George III, and Queen Charlotte. The third, from Chepstow Castle, was traditionally supposed to have belonged to Henry IV, and to have been used by his son, afterwards Henry V,

AROUND THE COURTS

ASSAULT CASE ADJOURNED

Hearing was continued at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday, in the case in which six Chinese were summoned for assault against Lau Mo Lung, the Chairman of the Chinese National Boxing Association on July 3 at Kowloon City.

The defendants, Chung Ngai
Tsai, Chan Shuen, Lam Muk
Chun, Ching Lam, Kun, Yeung Lam Tai and Chan Kong, were alleged to have assaulted the complainant with hammer heads and scissor blades, inflicting wounds for which he had to have medical attention.

The case was heard before Mr.
Thompson and the complainant was represented by Mr. A. da-Silva, while the defendants were not legally represented.

Wong Fook Yu, a subpoenaed witness said that his son was a member of the boxing association, with which complainant was connected. He knew nothing of the assault, but was acquainted with the first and fifth defendants, whom he knew as a coolie and a carrier of sauce respectively.

Nobody at anytime made any threat to him regarding the advisability of making his son leave the association in question.

This completed his evidence,
and the Magistrate said that he could not see any point in it. If Mr. Silva made an application to treat the witness as a hostile witness, he would feel inclined to grant it. The prosecuting counsel, whereupon, thanked the Bench,
and proceeded with the case.

THREATS DENIED

Witness denied that the second,
third and fourth defendants threatened him with any bodily harm if he did not withdraw his son from membership of the association.

Mr. Silva: Can you give any reason therefore why the complainant subpoenaed you to give evidence?

Witness replied that two men, whom he did not know and who certainly were not any of the defendants, approached him one day and asked him how much he was paying for the tuition fees for his son to learn boxing. Witness was very busy at the time,
and did not question their purpose. He remembered, though, the reason they gave for asking the question was because they wished to fix up the accounts of the association for the complainant.

When did these men approach you?—Witness: I do not remember the date. It was some time last month—before the first hearing in Court.

Questioned further, witness admitted that it was after the assault had taken place.

Wong Pak Huen, another subpoenaed witness said that he was away at the time when the case was called up for hearing, but his wife came to Court. She had told him that two men called around at his house, but of whom he was unacquainted with.

His wife had told him that the two men in question were not any of the defendants.

THE ATTACK

Lau Mun Kwong, a nephew of the complainant said that on the day in question he and his uncle were crossing a vacant piece of ground when the latter was attacked by a number of people who came out of a fire wood shop in the vicinity.

He recognised all the defendants with the exception of the fifth as his uncle's assailants, while the fourth held his uncle so that the others could assault him, and they used hammer heads and scissor blades when attacking.

All defendants denied the assault. The first said, "he is telling lies" the second said "I was not there." I was at Shaikwan," the third I did not assault him.
He (witness) says that I was there because he is complainant's relation," the fourth "I did not assault him. I am even afraid to do so, as he is a boxer," and the sixth "I work in Tsai Tsai Tsui, and only go to Kowloon City, four or five times a month."

Re-examined by Mr. Silva, witness pointed out a scar on second defendant's left hand which he alleged was incurred by the latter during the assault.

Chung Ngai Sai (first defendant) then elected to go into the witness-box to give his version of the affair. He said that on the night of the alleged assault he did not go out, as his wife was lying ill. The next day he was called to the station, where he went but he was subsequently released.

UNUSAL CASE

A sequel to an unusual case in which a woman bit another woman was heard at the Central Magistracy yesterday morning when man, Chan Sam (48) seamstress, appeared before Mr. Macfadyen charged with inflicting grievous bodily harm to Lo Ngan, who is now lying in the Government Civil Hospital in a serious condition.

Detective Sub-Inspector O'Don-ovan stated that the present charge was a sequel to a case which came before his Worship on July 23 when defendant and two others, one of whom was Lo Ngan, were charged with disorderly conduct.

At the time it was alleged that Lo Ngan had been bitten in the left forearm by Chan Sam. Lo Ngan is now in hospital suffering from a septic arm.

Although the injured woman was instructed to go to the hospital for daily treatment she failed to do so as she evidently preferred Chinese medicine.

Her condition at present is serious and may result in the amputation of her left arm.

Lo Ngan was the second defendant and Chan Sam the first defendant in the previous case of fighting.

If the woman happens to die
as a result of the bite, the prosecuting officer remarked that he though he would be in order to bring a charge against the defendant. He admitted there was a certain amount of neglect on the part of the complainant in failing to attend hospital when instructed to do so. Lo Ngan, he added, would not be able to attend Court for two weeks.

The Magistrate remarked he thought they must have some advice on the case and Inspector O'Donovan said he would seek it and added that there was very little to say for either party, as there was a general squabble between them. Defendant was accordingly remanded for one week.

HEAVY FINES IMPOSED

Ho Shiu, married woman, appeared before Mr. W. Schofield,
at the Central Magistracy yesterday charged on counts of (1) possession of 163.4 tael of prepared opium and 90 tael of raw opium, and (2) 232 tael of desiccated raw opium, at No. 79 Queen's Road Central, second floor.

Revenue Officer Grimmitt said the place was apparently being kept as an opium depot. The woman's husband was apparently a seaman, and she informed him that her husband's friends brought the opium to the house. In the house were also found five or six opium-carrying belts and other paraphernalia.

A fine of $3,500, in default nine months, was imposed on the charge of possession of prepared opium, and $1,500, in default three months, on the other charge of the raw variety.

MURDER CHARGE

Hung Ko, aged 22, a tea-house waiter, and Hung Yu, a cook, appeared before Mr. W. Schofield
at the Central Magistracy yesterday charged with the murder of another Chinese male at Luk Lan Village in the Ting Kwan District, on May 18 last, and were remanded for one week.

Acting Chief Detective-Inspector
Elston, who appeared for the prosecution, asked for a formal remand as the cases against the accused were not complete. The murder was alleged to have taken place in a village which was within the jurisdiction of the Provincial Government of Kwang-tung.

A charge of stealing two pine trees from Government Plantation
No. 9a near Kap Sik Mi Village, was brought against Tang Kwan,
aged 35, unemployed, before Mr.
Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday. Defendant was sent to the hospital after his arrest and had not yet been discharged yesterday. The case was remanded.

A charge of theft of fourteen clocks was brought against Wong Tim, aged 27, unemployed, when he appeared before Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday. He was sentenced to two months imprisonment.

At this stage the case was adjourning.

THEFT BY A TRICK

At the Kowloon Magistracy, yesterday morning, Li Luk, (25) unemployed, appeared before Mr.
E. I. Wynne-Jones, on a charge of stealing by a trick two packets of cigarettes, valued at ten cents,
from the stall of an old man named Leung Kui at Temple Street.

Inspector R. Shannon said defendant went to complainant's stall and asked for two packets of cigarettes. They were given him, and he commenced to walk away. Complainant called out and defendant, taking out two packets which appeared to be the original cigarettes, handed them to complainant, saying he did not want them.

In reality, the packets were stuffed with paper, and sealed to resemble new packets.

Sentence of six weeks hard labour was imposed.

Mrs. G. Rapp was fined $10 by Mr. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday when a representative admitted a summons of allowing a brown dog to be abroad unmuzzled on the morning of August 3.

Leung Nun-pui, 20, was charged before Mr. Macfadyen at the Central Police Court, yesterday with loitering in Ice House Street, near Queen's Road. He had been warned on previous occasions. Defendant was bound over for one year.

Chan Sam appeared before Mr.
Macfadyen, yesterday at the Central Police Court, charged with inflicting grievous bodily harm to Ko Ngan, by biting her in the left fore arm. Complainant is now in the Government Civil Hospital.
Det-Insp. O'Donovan, appearing for the prosecution, stated complainant did not go to hospital when told, and there is now a danger of amputation. Defendant was remanded for one week.

Charged before Mr. W. Schofield,
at the Central Magistracy yesterday with possession of forty sticks of dynamite and two coils of fuse, without permission from the I. G. P., at Island Road, yesterday, Cheung Sang, unemployed, was fined $75,
in default, six weeks' hard labour.
Ngan Sang, unemployed, was also charged, but the police accepted his denial of possession. He stated he was carrying the basket containing the dynamite for the first defendant.

MISSION LEAVE FOR CENTRAL ASIA

Good Send Off

On the evening of July 14th, Kingsway Hall was crowded to capacity to bid God-speed to the well-known Trio as they set forth once more for Central Asia. After protracted negotiations to secure passports, the long-closed doors had begun to open. Their writings and their personal contacts have made them beamed at home to a wide circle of friends, and the eager faces which looked up to the platform were eloquent of the affection and esteem in which they are held all over the country. All present were eager to look once more upon the faces of those three intrepid pioneers, faces steadfastly set towards the needy but uninviting Gobi desert. Such a field needs faces set like flints, and behind all the womanly grace of the speakers their resolution and grit were evident.

After the reading of the Scriptures and prayer by the Rev. Earnshaw Smith, followed by some remarks by the Chairman, the Rev. W. H. Adis, the three travellers gave their farewell messages. Kingsway Hall was well suited for the occasion. Speaker and audience made easy contact and a family freedom prevailed throughout the evening. With no sense of incongruity, humour and gravity blended together, the Lord being Lord of all.

GLAD TO BE BACK

Miss Eva French, having thanked the friends for the overflowing love which had brought them, centred her remarks around a question she had been frequently asked, namely, "Are you not thrilled to be going back?" Pleasing conditions in the Gobi, its stony floor, the filth of its inns, the hard bread and unappetizing food, the uncertainties of life, the rumours, the brigands, etc., these things, she said, made poor thrills. But contacts with needy souls, the evidences that kind deeds did bear fruit, were thrills worth while. But the only true thrill was to be able to say, as the Master did, "I delight to do Thy will."

People had asked if Topsy was thrilled at going back to her native land, but Topsy's blither experiences in the land of her birth were poor preparations for being thrilled at the prospect of return. But there were a few things that Topsy wanted to say, and though she had been born deaf and was consequently dumb, she had been taught to know about five hundred words by the helpful tuition of Miss Wheeler, an expert in teaching deaf and dumb children. At Miss French's invitation Topsy then rose and said "Good-bye" and "Forget-me-not," waving her hand as she did so. Topsy will not be forgotten and the memory of her will speak for her people.

INFORMATION GIVEN

Miss Francesca French, sensing the desire of the audience for information, set out to answer the question, "Tell us how you stand as too Permits." Describing the door as a two-leaved one, one leaf being Russia and the other Chinese Turkestan, she reported the results of twelve months' labour with the watchword, "Let's Push." And the next step was to leave London tomorrow and to cross the Channel on August 8th. With some description of the various modes of travel, by rail, by motor and by less easy methods, she reminded us that it was no undertaking to be entered into in a despondent mood. Fully aware of the difficulties and dangers she was still not dubious about coming back some day for another furlough, and they were becoming experts in furloughs! They had not always had a cottage in the country, and she rather wondered, the police had not been making enquiries about the luggage once left so long in the Waterloo cloakroom! Both jubilant and solemn, she reminded the audience that the work was theirs as much as hers.

Miss Cable immediately transported us to the realities of the Central Asian roads. In spirit she had been there while her companions had been speaking. She almost felt the desert grit. At home all was for speed, but the ancient roads, with their three miles per hour, were better suited for the great business of preaching the Gospel. Christ had joined Himself to two discouraged disciples on the road, and the talk had been about great things. The great question of the road was, "Whence do you come and whither are you going? Think what you lose by your speed, she said. You can't talk on these great and everlasting subjects when speed is the passion. Incidentally she revealed her love of Bunyan, for what a traveller puts in his hand luggage could not fail to be a revelation, and Bunyan was her choice. She would not disclose what she others took! With the pointed question, "Do we all know whether we are travelling?" she passed on to speak of the contacts of the camp.

Camping necessitated communism. Sitting round the one fire, you brought your fuel, someone else brought some tea, another something else for the common pot. And thus contacts became easy for speaking about the Gospel. But such a life had its zero hours, and there was need to learn how to hold on, and spiritual courage was more than physical endurance.

Mr. Hugh Redwood, addressing the Trio and Topsy, in the name of those present, and of a greater and unseen company, turned for his final word to Pilgrim's Progress. After speaking of the benediction the Trio had brought to Fleet Street, and of the fateful hour in the world's history when they leave these shores, he commended them to Jesus Christ, the Great-Heart for all pilgrims. After a valedictory prayer by the Chairman, and the Benediction, the meeting closed. The not throughout was one of triumph and the hymns were hymns of confidence and consecration. And the last line sung was, "Till He shall come, Whose reign shall know no end." Thus once again the three intrepid travellers steadfastly set their faces towards the heart of Asia.

THE NAVAL CONFERENCE

Niggardly Information

(Special Air Mail Service)

London July 30.

This country is so much interested in its navy that it is a pity the Government is so niggardly with its information about naval policy. It is natural that the Government should be slow to tell the country about the expenditure that is coming unless something very unexpected happens, but it would be just as well to be frank about the situation that is leading up to the expenditure; anyone might suppose from some of the things said by Ministers that the creation of a new German fleet was a short cut to the Peace and Retrenchment of the Gladstonian age. Yesterday Lord Londonderry gave another hint or two about the naval agreement which, at the coming conference, the Government hopes to substitute for the now dead ratios. It seems likely to be less solid even than had been suggested. Each country would state a programme for 1937-42, but these programmes would not have the force or form of contractual obligations. That is to say, they could be modified, but any Power proposing to modify would have to give at least one year's notice to the others. It is clear that the most important part of this conference will be that which takes place before the conference opens; each country will put forward what it will defend as its minimum needs for its security, and each will examine the other defensive programmes to see how far its own security is threatened by them. At the finish the accepted programmes will have no contractual force and their makers will be able to denounce them at a year's notice. If there were a determined proposal to cut down the various categories of ships by a fixed proportion (as in the Hoover Plan) we might still have hopes of something substantial coming out of the conference. But there is no such proposal, and the drafting by each country of its own defensive programme is likely to result only in increased building. At the moment it looks as though the conference might give us nothing better than a full knowledge of each other's plans and a warning when changes are coming.

EXCITEMENT AT REPULSE BAY

Lad Rescued

Great excitement was caused at Repulse Bay shortly after noon yesterday, when shouts for help were heard to come from a swimmer some distance from the shore. His cries for assistance at once attracted attention and a number of people, both European and Chinese who happened to be on the beach at the time swam out to the spot, but a small boy, aged about twelve years of age, riding on a surf board was the first to reach the distressed swimmer. The latter was eventually rescued by a European and brought to shore in an exhausted condition.

The fortunate lad's name is Woo Ting, a dining room boy employed at the Lido, who after a rest on the beach was able to proceed to the "servants' quarters of the Repulse Bay Hotel.

At the time of the incident, the life saving boat which patrols the bay was not in service.

"THE NEXT FIVE YEARS"

A Book On Philosophy

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 29.

No one who takes a serious interest in politics can afford to overlook "The Next Five Years," the book in which an influential group, led by Sir Arthur Salter, Lord Allen of Hurtwood, and Mr. Harold Macmillan, expresses its political philosophy and programme.

It is impossible to compress into a column or twelve months' hard thinking by men of great ability and knowledge on almost every aspect of politics. One can only indicate its outlook and its most striking suggestions. The book would form the basis for a working programme for a Centre party if there was one. It is impregnated with Liberalism, in the wider sense of the term, and it owes something to the too little honoured Liberal Industrial Inquiry of 1923. But its appeal is not confined to members of the Liberal party. There are quite a number of Conservatives who put their names to it and members of the "National Labour" group; and besides these a host of people distinguished in literature, education, science, or the Churches who are not active members of any political party. The question remains, What practical chance has a programme of this kind? What party or parties can carry it into effect? Labour stands aloof; there is not one active Socialist politician among the signatories. There are Conservatives; but one cannot conceive an orthodox Conservative Government which would introduce the measures here outlined for the reorganisation of industry or for the State ownership of land. Would the signatories be willing to vote against any Government, Conservative or "National" which refused to carry out this programme? And if not, who will see it through?

TRADE RETURNS

Good Results Shown

London, Aug. 14.

Preliminary figures of Overseas trade for July show an increase as compared with June and with July of last year for both imports and domestic exports. Imports were £1,825,000 as compared with £57,827,000 in June and £58,028,000 in July 1934. Domestic exports were £35,443,000 as compared with £32,914,000 in June and £33,230,000 in July 1934. Re-exports were £3,961,000 as against £5,222,000 in June and £4,129,000 in July 1934.

The increase of Domestic exports for the seven months to the end of July as compared with corresponding period of last year amounts to £19,825,000 of which £17,232,000 is accounted for by rise in exports of goods wholly or mainly manufactured in Britain.

FORGERY CHARGE FAILS

Complainant Criticised

Criticising the manner in which he allowed the official chop of his shop, to lie about the place without any real check on it's use, Mr. E. I. Wynne Jones dismissed a case yesterday afternoon in which Wong Fook Hong (27), master of the Sau Wco vegetable dealer appeared as the complainant against Yau Hl, an unemployed Chinese who was charged with uttering a false document, in the form of a credit note purporting to be issued by the company in question, whereby the latter was entitled to receive payment of $10.41, while knowing the note to have been forged.

After certain evidence had been offered by the prosecution, the Magistrate said that complainant deserved everything that was coming to him, and in addition he (complainant) stood the risk of losing a lot of money if he continued to carry on his business in the manner as related to the Court.

Because anyone had access to the chop of the company in question, the Magistrate contended that it did not constitute forgery, so the case was dismissed.

SUSPICIOUS AROUSED

Sergt. Downman, for the prosecution in presenting the facts of the case said that on the morning of July 31, defendant went to complainant's vegetable shop, which is situated at the junction of Reclamation Road and Shanghai Street. He handed in a credit note to the complainant, which bore the official chop of the shop. The latter failed to recognise the hand writing so he took it to the accountant to be checked up. The accountant also failed to recognise the writing or signature, and in addition he was not able to trace any entry in his books purporting to the note, which entitled the bearer to receive payment for vegetables sold to the shop.

He grew suspicious and detained the defendant, in the meanwhile getting in touch with the Police.

Ko Hoi, an accountant of the shop in evidence said that he wrote the accounts for the shop, but admitted that each account was chopped by apprentices before he signed them.

Wong Yu Ting, the chief accountant substantiated the opening statements for the prosecution, stating that he grew suspicious when he failed to recognise the signature affixed on the note.

At this stage, the Magistrate said that according to the evidence given in Court, it was quite evident that the chop was allowed to lie about anywhere. Such carelessness was bound to lead to trouble. He could not under the circumstances register a conviction, and accordingly dismissed the case.

ANGLO-FRENCH TALKS

On Abyssinian Dispute

London, Aug. 14.

The preliminary talks on the Italo-Abyssinian dispute began in Paris to-day between the French Premier Laval who was accompanied by the political director of Quai d'Orsay, M. Barthelemy and the British Minister for League Affairs Mr. Anthony Eden, and the Permanent Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, Sir Robert Vansittart.

It is understood that Mr. Eden has only outlined in some detail the views of the British Government upon the features of the actual dispute but, with emphasis upon the wider issues in Europe and elsewhere liable to arise in the event of outbreak of hostilities in Africa.

He referred also to the practical unanimity displayed by the British public opinion in regard to the questions at stake.

The discussion which followed revealed the community of outlook of the French and British Governments as to the extreme serious-

OBITUARY

Viscount Bridgeman

London, Aug. 14.

The death occurred to-day of Viscount Bridgeman of Leigh, former First Lord of the Admiralty, and Chairman of the British Broadcasting Corporation since 1933.

The late Lord Bridgeman was born in London in December, 1884, and was educated at Eton where he was captain of the Oppidans and at Trinity College, Cambridge, where he took honours in classics. He became assistant private secretary to Lord Knutsford at the Colonial Office and then to Sir Michael Hicks Beach at the Treasury. In 1895, he married Caroline, daughter of the Hon. Cecil Parker. He was elected Conservative M.P. for the Oswestry Division in 1906, and devoted his attention chiefly to education—he was for seven years on the London School Board—and to agricultural questions. A Junior Lord of the Treasury in the first coalition government during the war, he was later Assistant Director of the War Trade Department.

In 1916 he became Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Labour and in 1919 Secretary of the Board of Trade. From 1920 to 1922 he was Secretary of the Mines Department and in 1923 was made an Ecclesiastical Commissioner. Mr. Bonar Law appointed him Home Secretary in 1922. During his term of office he ordered the deportation and internment of Irish prisoners in England. His action was pronounced by the Court of Appeal to be illegal and for his protection a special indemnity Act was passed.

"APPROVES" STRIKE

In November 1924, he became First Lord of the Admiralty and re-introduced in a modified form the scheme for the construction of a naval base and dockyard at Singapore. He was called on to represent the Government during the fruitless negotiations with the miners in 1925 and in May 1926, was one of the Ministers who opposed the Premier's efforts to avert a general strike.

Lord Bridgeman was chief delegate at the Geneva Naval Conference between Britain, U.S. and Japan in 1927 which broke down owing to Anglo-American differences regarding cruisers. Nevertheless by Jan. 1928, Britain had dropped three cruisers from its programme—a saving of £5,500,000. In September, he announced that he would not seek re-election, as for three years he had been suffering from an arthritis which was steadily getting worse. He could not, he said, continue working 12 hours a day. At the dissolution in June, 1929, he was raised to the peerage as Viscount Bridgeman. In Feb. 1932, he gave up his London house and retired to Shropshire.

He owed much to his wife, who was regarded as the ablest woman in the Conservative party and was an excellent political speaker and organiser. In Oct. 1924, she was made a Dame of the British Empire. Two years later she had the distinction of being the first woman to preside at the Conference of Conservative Associations.

To-morrow, Baron Aloisi will reach Paris and will have an interview with the French Premier and it is expected that formal talks between the French, British and Italian delegates will begin on Friday as arranged.

This evening Mr. Eden had a conversation with the Greek Minister in Paris, M. Politis, who is the fifth member of appointed to the Conciliation Commission which is taking up again the examination of last November incident at Waiwai.

NEW INSTRUMENTS OF EDUCATION

The present day media of education are both fruitful and enlightening. Do the authorities take full advantage of them? Sir John Reith, director general of the British Broadcasting Corporation and Sir James Marchant, chairman of visual education both answer this question with an emphatic no.

Not more than 20 per cent of the educational authorities in Britain use the instructional services provided by the B.B.C. according to Sir John Reith, yet he maintains that the sum of £400,000, spread over five years, would equip every school in the country with a receiving set. Sir James Marchant declares that the same is true of cinema projectors. It is regrettable that full use is not made of the many educational films that have been manufactured, especially in the sphere of natural history, and the educational and cultural value of the B.B.C.'s radiocasts to schools, contributed by eminent authors, scholars, statesmen and journalists.

But there is something to be said for the conservatism of teachers. At the beginning of the era of film and radio so many extravagant claims were made on their behalf, sometimes to the effect that the whole teaching staff of the nation would be rendered obsolete, that the natural reaction may well have been to doubt whether these two media were really of much educational value at all. Anything that tends to show that this is not so is therefore of considerable potential influence in moulding the educational development of the country.

An experiment recently carried on in a school at Hemel Hempstead is deservedly arousing interest. Tests are being made to find out whether the educational value of the cinema is increased if students are given an insight into the critical and technical fundamentals of film art. Experiments like these which are probably numerous all over Europe and America and in this connection deserve wide publicity, for it is from them that the data are derived which show how the best results may be obtained from these new media of education, with the consequent breaking down of such prejudices as still exist.

Sugar Tax And Dress Reform

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, Aug. 15. Native sugar merchants have petitioned to the Kwangtung Provincial Government for abolishing the registration of sugar because during the period of registration they cannot sell the stock. They pointed out that the intention of the Kwongtung Products Sales Office is to buy the sugar from the merchants at a fixed price.

These merchants consider that such registration is tantamount to a monopoly of native sugar. The petition said that times are bad and that unemployment is increasing. Sugar dealers are carrying on with great difficulty, and they have to sell the sugar to the government at fixed prices, this trade will suffer. However, an official of the Sugar Production Station denied that the government intends to buy native sugar in a compulsory manner.

SARTORIAL REFORM

The police authorities will enforce the new ruling of dress reform for women, and the general public. An effective way to put the reform into effect is to require the tailors not to make clothes in fancy style but to conform with the requirements of the Political Research Institute, which decrees that feminine dress should be long enough to cover up the legs and arms.

So far only women officials have complied with the ruling for new dress reform, as they do not want to lose their jobs. Other women stick to their stylish summer wear which discloses a good part of their arms and legs. Their excuse is that the fashionable summer garb is cool and comfortable, while new dress would cost money. The dress reform was proposed by General Chen Tsai Tong, head of the Kwangtung armies, and approved by the Political Research Institute.

STRAIGHT FROM THE SHOULDER

(BY NO QUARTER)

"THE SUN IS SHINING, THE SKIES ARE BLUE, THERE'S NO REPINING, MY HEART IS TRUE."

So sang the poet Abraham Schpillitz only a few months before he was arrested by the Bosnian Black Helmet Society for polluting the Paloukas. He was subsequently shot in the rump by a zinc apple fired from a hundred and twenty four inch gun.

Seriously though, what a thing it is to see old Father Sol again. The marrow runs again in my old bones, and I distinctly remember slapping Mrs. Rugglinson in a fit of sheer bonhomie when I saw her last (looking lovelier than ever) in the Hong Kong Hotel. As far as I can remember she made no protest, but then as you know, she may well have been drunk at the time. Poor Mrs. R. she never got over the time when she thought she saw a Thibetan Yak reading a newspaper on Battery Path.

All the same, hope springs anew. Crocuses and all that sort of thing,—well you know what I mean, which is more than I do. When does the 8.45 start, Station Master?

MATHEMATICAL MUMBO-JUMBO

I see old Daddy Einstein has brought another rabbit out of his over-sized hat. He is a thinker, is our Albert, and the thing which seems to have been worrying him is how to reconcile the Quantum Theory with his original little vaudeville act about Relativity. Its the sort of thing that would drive the ordinary man to the bottle, but not so our Biepie. No Sir! He has a new scenario.

Albert starts by saying that "the mathematical representation of physical space is a space of two identical sheets." This is the sort of thing that no business man should be without. The Quantum Theory, as everybody knows, is allied to the tables of affinity in the Prayer Book, by which it is forbidden for relatives to be between identical sheets. This is known as Relativity.

Professor Albert continues by theorising upon the most elementary charged particle. It is my experience that the most elementary charged particle is a Talpan on Saturday night.

Professor Aufgang disagrees entirely with this new theory. Matter, he says, is entirely a function of anachronistic botulism. Any thinking man, will, I think, think the same as he thinks.

HIE! SQUATTERS

The gravest anxiety has been caused in higher circles by the recent, eviction of the squatters from Wongmetchong. Talpans have been consulting their lawyers, and lawyers have been consulting their talpans in a desperate effort to discover what is the exact definition of a squatter. Mr. Justice Blowbelle, when interrogated on this point seemed to me to be quite explicit, "Squatter," he said, "and the genus squatter, is fully dealt with in the case of Rex versus Sliggy (1909) when it was decided that Sliggy being a squatter in re situ, and a baldee within the meaning of the Act was, in re facto, no party to the torts of his tenants." Herr Graf Guggenheimer states more firmly: "Das schoenfrenheit ist aller."

Personally, when faced with such a problem, I drown my brain and my conscience in excellent ale, and hope that somebody else will find a solution.

I am shortly bringing out a small booklet entitled, "SQUAT OR SWOT? A cadets dilemma." I shall buy two copies to cover the cost of printing.

The prisoner who escaped from Laichitok Prison on Wednesday morning is now revealed to be a man named Wong Sing, alias Wong Yat, aged 23, a native of Hong Kong. His prison number is 19763.

His prison coat was found on the hill-side at the junction of Tai Po Road and Castle Peak Road. It was covered with blood stains and it was presumed that the man injured himself whilst scaling the prison wall.

The prisoner was undergoing sentence of twelve months.

A serious accident occurred aboard H.M.S. Delight on Wednesday, at about 7.40 o'clock, when Able Seaman S.H.C. West, aged 23 years, fell from the lower bridge of the craft, which was in the naval dry dock, receiving multiple injuries.

West fell a distance of 60 feet and was unconscious when picked up. He was hurried to the Royal Naval Hospital, where he lies in a serious condition, suffering, it is believed, from a broken jaw and several broken ribs, as well as concussion.

A male child, Lai Hung Sing, residing at No. 256 Tai Nam Street, was admitted to the Kwong Wah Hospital on Wednesday, suffering from the effects of Lysol poisoning. It appears that the Lysol was given to the child in mistake for a medicine.

Mr. N. E. Young, M.C. of the British Treasury, who is studying economic conditions in the Colony in connection with the Leith-Ross Mission to China, is at present a patient at the Victoria Hospital, suffering from influenza. He is making satisfactory progress.

HOPE REALISED

Washington, Aug. 14. President Roosevelt has signed the Social Securities Bill, describing it as "the cornerstone of the structure which is being built, but which is by no means complete." The President added that "civilisation during the past hundred years, with its startling industrial changes, has tended more and more to make life insecure. Today a hope of many years standing has been in large part fulfilled by measures which will take care of human needs, and at the same time provide for the United States an economic structure of vastly greater soundness." INFORMAL TALKS SERVE AS DRESS REHEARSAL

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")

Paris, Aug. 15. Despite M. Laval's statement that he would not have further meetings with Mr. Eden before Friday, the press on Thursday morning announced that the French Premier, after having seen Baron Aloisi in the afternoon, will immediately confer with Mr. Eden on Thursday evening, in order to compare with the latter the British-Italian view points.

It does not appear that Mr. Eden has made proposals that will meet the Italian demands halfway, says "le Matin," which expresses the belief that the British proposal is intended to strengthen "The British Government's defence position which is aiming to seek a solution for the conflict, solely on an economic and not political basis."

Britain will resist any attempt to make her give up these principles and are trying to convert M. Laval to the British point by appealing to the "solid unity idea," declares the paper, adding that France, however, is unwilling to sacrifice her friendship with Italy and she is, therefore, trying to reconcile the opposing British-Italian view points.

The Journal likewise asserts that Mr. Eden did not bring any new proposals from London. Mr. Eden, however, the paper continues had been told that France will do all that is possible to prevent war which would complete the dissolution of those group of powers upon whom depends the maintenance of European order.

ALOISI ARRIVES

Paris, Aug. 15. Baron Aloisi, Italy's representative at the tripartite conference, arrived this morning and later saw M. Laval at the Foreign Office.

Laval's conversations with Aloisi lasted 75 minutes. Nobody else was present and nothing about it was disclosed, Laval merely telling journalists that the tripartite meeting opens to-morrow.

M. Laval will probably see Mr. Anthony Eden again this afternoon. Reuter.

AGREEMENT REACHED

Paris, Aug. 14. It is understood that Mr. Anthony Eden, British delegate to the three-power conference at Paris in connection with the Italo-Abyssinian dispute, and M. Pierre Laval, Prime Minister of France, have reached agreement on important points with respect to the conversations which are scheduled to commence officially on August 16.

They have agreed, firstly, that they must treat the Italo-Abyssinian dispute strictly within the framework of the League of Nations. Secondly, there will be question of French mediation between Great Britain and Italy.

Both Mr. Eden and M. Laval expressed deep concern for the preservation of peace and the fulfilment of the League's obligations, agreeing that the tripartite conversation offered the last chance for peaceful settlement of the Africa crisis before the League meets on September 4.

It is understood that the French Government have been informed of the British plan for the granting of economic concessions by Abyssinia to Italy. Details of these concessions have heretofore not been disclosed, but it is understood that these are comparable first with the Treaty of 1906, guaranteeing Abyssinia's territorial integrity and tracing the three zones of foreign influence; secondly, with the Italo-Abyssinian Treaty of 1928 and thirdly, with the League Covenant.

POSSIBLE BASIS

The Anglo-Italian notes exchanged in 1925, hartering exclusive Italian influence in Western Abyssinia and the construction of an Italian railway linking Eritrea with Italian Somaliland against the protection of the British interests in the Lake Tana area, offer a possible basis for negotiations, it is believed.

If Signor Mussolini can be persuaded to accept the concessions which Britain and France, taking Italy's need for colonial expansion into full consideration, regard as reasonable, Britain and France are expected to use their influence to obtain Abyssinia's consent to the arrangement. Reuter.

NO INFORMATION

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Paris, Aug. 14. No official information is forthcoming concerning the result of yesterday's conference between Mr. Anthony Eden and M. Laval, but it appears certain that no further talks between the British and French representatives will take place before the Italian delegation's arrival, since both Mr. Eden and M. Laval seem to be agreed that the exchange of views cannot lead to any tangible results, so long as the exact scope and character of the Italian demands are not known.

It will thus be necessary to await the first meeting between M. Laval and Signor Aloisi, which is scheduled to take place on Thursday. According to reliable information, Mr. Eden has pointed out in his talk with M. Laval yesterday, that the forthcoming negotiations must be based not only on the Three Power Treaty of 1906, but also on the notes exchanged between England and Italy in September, 1920, in which England recognised Italy's claim to the extension of her sphere of her economic influence in Abyssinia, while the Italian Government gave England the assurance that she would respect British interests on Lake Tana and the Blue Nile.

France had subsequently given her tacit consent to this agreement, while Abyssinia protested but did not press the matter. It appears now that England is willing to support Italy's demands for her economic expansion in Abyssinia, but will oppose any territorial aspirations. It seems certain at any rate that M. Laval will be confronted with a highly delicate task, in the role of mediator, when the Three Power Conference formally opens on Friday afternoon. Transocean Kuo Min.

VIGOROUS PROTEST

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Geneva, Aug. 14. A vigorous protest against the continued military preparations by Italy has been addressed to the General Secretary of the League of Nations, by the Abyssinian Minister in Paris, in a letter which states in part "that despite the resumption of conciliatory arbitration procedure in accordance with the decision of the League Council of August 3, the Italian Government continues to send troops and munition to East Africa."

"Italy moreover has uninterruptedly manufactured arms and other instruments of war, with the solemnly proclaimed intention of using them against the Abyssinian Empire. There are no public or private arms and munition factories in Abyssinia. The Abyssinian Government is at present not in a position to procure such means of defence from foreign countries."

When it attempts to buy war material, it meets with an embargo. Does this consist of real neutrality dictated by justice? Will the League Council remain inactive in view of the situation which is steadily growing graver? Will it permit this unequal struggle to continue between two members of the League? "Which is the more powerful and able to employ all their means for preparing an attack, while the other, which is weak and peaceful and respects its international obligations, has no possibility for organising the defence of her territory from the threatened aggression?"

"Will the League of Nations Council assume the responsibility before the world of having permitted without interference preparations to be made for the whole slaughter of a nation which is threatening nobody?" Transocean Kuo Min.

DAY OF MANY RUMOURS

But Market Reported To Be Steadier

REASSURING STATEMENT BY MR. HENRY MORGENTHAU

New York, Aug. 15.

Mr. Henry Morgenthau's statement came after a day of many rumours and protests from the Silver Senators. It is regarded in some quarters as an effort to head off both the threatened Senate investigation into the silver buying programme and a further liquidation of world silver holdings.

Mr. Morgenthau said that the Treasury silver purchases have been increased on the falling prices, this being "good business," adding that such a policy makes the Treasury least active when prices were steady and most active when speculators unload. The speaker added that both India and China had recently made large offerings, causing a break in world prices.

Meanwhile Senator Thomas announced that he was requesting a Senatorial investigation into the Treasury's silver buying programme, while Senator McCarran has prepared a rider to be attached, pending the Tax Bill, which would repeal the Silver Tax Bill and also the Nationalisation Sections of silver purchase. Reuter.

MARKET STEADIER

London, Aug. 15.

The silver market is reported to be steadier this morning, this being attributed partly to Mr. Henry Morgenthau's statement that American buying would continue, and partly to shake out the "bulls." It is estimated that America bought from between 50 to 60 million ounces during the past three days.

The "Financial Times" says that since June 23, last, with the passing of the Purchase Act, America acquired 38,505 thousand ounces of new mined silver, 112,912 thousand ounces of nationalised silver, and approximately 270 million ounces in the open market.

Meanwhile the increase in gold reserves has largely prevented a relative gain in silver stocks. The three to one proportion aimed at by the Purchase Act is, therefore, still distant. Competent authorities estimate that even if no more gold is acquired, the Government will still have to buy over a thousand million ounces of silver. Reuter.

REPORT DISCOUNTED

New York, Aug. 14. New York silver traders refuse to take seriously the "New York Journal of Commerce" report that the Treasury has ceased or will cease to buy silver abroad.

The report is characterised by many as "ridiculous" and the majority believe it would neither be politically nor economically feasible at the present juncture to scrap the Silver Purchase Act and the programme it involves.

At the same time, it is pointed out that the Treasury again has been a heavy purchaser in the London market while Treasury buying in New York has been reported at sixty cents. Reuter.

NO TREASURY COMMENT

Washington, Aug. 14. The New York "Journal of Commerce" report that the Treasury has discontinued its silver buying abroad has elicited no comment from Treasury Department officials, beyond the assertion that the Treasury would continue to fulfil the provisions of the Silver Purchase Act as long as it was on the statute books.

It was pointed out that the Secretary of the Treasury has been given wide discretionary powers, as that empowering him to acquire metal at prices reasonable and most advantageous to the public interest, but no limit has been set. Private sources advance two reasons for the price break:

First, that the Treasury is tapering off after recent comparatively heavy purchases;

Second, that speculators with heavy stocks have become discouraged and are unloading.

It is indicated that recent Government purchases have been of such a volume that a substantial reduction over a few days would be sufficient to break the market. Reuter.

Treasury Department officials admit that little progress has been made towards the accumulation of the 11,000,000,000 ounces needed to bring the Treasury stock to one quarter of the value of good stocks, which have been increased by $300,000,000 this year. Reuter.

"BULLS" DISAPPOINTED

London, Aug. 14.

Silver was again in the forefront of the news to-day consequent upon the enormous dealings of the immediately past session. It is estimated that America bought 25,000,000 ounces from mined "bull" operators alone.

Former Indian and Chinese "bull" operators have been most disappointed in the American silver policy and have rushed to sell in order to close their commitments. Meanwhile, America has bought heavily at a price which showed a slight decline compared to previous levels.

To-day, the "bulls," frightened by yesterday's fall, inundated the market with selling orders. The price, after being fixed at three farthings lower later declined another farthing.

The heavy American purchases necessitated the buying of a large amount of foreign exchange which explains the weakening of the dollar in terms of sterling.

Owing to the wave of selling yesterday and to-day, the "bull" position has been reduced considerably and the market therefore bears a healthier appearance. Reuter.

"NOT ALARMED"

The further drop in the price of silver is seen on Wall Street as a refection of the disappointment of speculators at the failure of the United States Treasury to bid up the price of the metal, coupled with the fact that Congress is in an adjourning mood and further action in favour of the Silver Bloc in the Senate is not looked for at present. This might have induced the further unloading of speculative long holdings.

Meanwhile, additional Treasury purchases are reported in the New York market, but according to silver traders the Treasury has been very particular about delivery times, giving rise to the opinion that it is endeavouring to make it as hard as possible for speculators to get rid of their holdings.

Official circles, as always, remain silent in respect of the price drop. But Senator Pittman, the strong Silver Block figure, commenting on the situation, said he was not alarmed. He was confident, he said, that the Treasury knew what it was doing. Reuter.

INQUIRY WANTED

Washington, Aug. 14. Senator Elmer Thomas, Oklahoma Democrat, and prominent silverite, announced to-day that he was preparing a resolution calling for a Congressional investigation of the Administration silver purchase programme.

He said the investigation would not be directed against any individuals, but against the programme's administration generally.

He added that if the programme is to be carried out it should be done immediately because there is no assurance that the present Administration will be in power for ever.

If the programme is not to be carried out then the acquisition of silver should be suspended now, without delay, declared Senator Thomas.

Discussing the McCarran Bill he said that Senator McCarran would introduce his measure for the silver six repeal as a rider to the Tax Bill, which Congress is to consider before adjournment, it is hoped. Reuter.

THE OVADA TRAGEDY

Committee To Investigate

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")

Milan, Aug. 15.

The committee of investigation sent to Molat to determine the cause of the bursting dam at Ovada on Wednesday reports that as far as can be said with certainty at present the heavy long-continued rains had raised the water level in the dam by 15 feet higher than the normal height, thus putting an enormous additional pressure on the masonry.

The chief dam proved equal to the exceptional strain, but one of the side reservoirs regulating the flow of water to the power works collapsed, allowing a vast body of water to run with an irresistible force into a small lake below used for irrigation.

The flood gates there could not stand the sudden increase of pressure and were torn off the lake so that instead of the normal content of 18 millions cubic metres there is now left only two millions. Thus, although the rains continue, no further dam bursting may be feared. The whole plant which was built about ten years ago had up to now had no disturbance of any kind. The investigation committee are authorised to suggest measures whereby a recurrence of such a catastrophe will be prevented. Transocean Kuo Min.

CURIOUS SEQUEL

Saarbruecken, Aug. 15.

One most curious sequels of the Saar territory's re-incorporation into Germany is the fact that German railways find themselves compelled to close a railway tunnel on a section of the line running from Merzig to Waldwies, near the French border.

Although both entrance and exit to the tunnel is on German territory, the tunnel cuts through on top where the French frontier runs into Germany. Since France is demanding double customs control for trains passing through the tunnel, as well as a fee of 250,000 francs annually for the use of French territory, the German au-

FINANCES OF GERMANY

The Situation Summarised

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press")

Berlin, Aug. 15.

To refute the allegations appearing with increasing frequency in the foreign press to the effect that the German financial situation has been rendered unsound by the extravagant expenditure in the anti-unemployment campaign, "Lokalanzeiger" summarises the situation in an article under the heading of "How Is The Fight Against Joblessness Being Financed?"

Basing the exposition on the figures obtained from official sources, these show that in 2 1/2 years, since the advent of the Hitler regime, unemployment had shrunk from 6 to 14 millions. This had necessitated a vast expenditure of money which was raised chiefly by the issue of Treasury Bonds which the Reich engaged itself to redeem within 5 years. These Bonds have been readily accepted by all the Banks as gilt edged securities bearing a profitable rate of interest. The total amount of such "anti-jobless bonds" held by the Reichbank, private banks, savings banks and insurance companies is now aggregate five milliards marks.

TOTALS DEBTS

The debts of the Reich amount to 128 milliards at the end of April, 1935 as against 11.18 milliards on April 1933, according to official figures published by the Reich Statistical office so that the Reich National Debt is increased by only 1 milliard under the Hitler regime.

If the total amount of anti-jobless bills was added to the Reich debt, it results in a grand total of 17 to 18 milliards marks, which is no wise anomalous by comparison with the total national fortune estimated as between 250 and 350 milliards marks, or with the State Debts of other great countries.

MUCH REFLECTION

The only feature causing the state much reflection is a portion of this total indebtedness, namely about 18 milliards, not yet consolidated. This part of the total state indebtedness is, however, being converted into long term loans as quickly as possible and already the "liquid capital" accumulated at the Savings Banks and Insurance Companies have been utilised for this purpose.

It must be remembered that the financing of the anti-unemployment is not accomplished by drawing on the future. The Reich's revenue is rising under the improved economic situation and so is the portion earmarked each year for paying off the floating debts. Transocean Kuo Min.

ANOTHER SEASON AT HAND

The F. A. Develop Technique

THE REFEREE PROBLEM

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 29.

For rather more than seventy years the Football Association have steadily developed the playing of the game by all classes of the community, writes a correspondent. That was their primary purpose—to encourage the playing of the game as a pastime for the refreshment of mind, for the invigoration of the body, and for the joy that such a revel can give to young and healthy men. The idea was to provide an attraction in the open air during the time of the year when the atmosphere was chill and the fireside might mean comfort. Probably some of their schemes have had results that no man could foresee. One conclusion, however, is beyond dispute: this form of football has obtained an almost universal vogue among those who are strong and active, and an amazing popularity among people who for a variety of reasons can only be spectators. British football has attained distinction, and, as the guardians of the game, the Association are making new and interesting moves to maintain the high standard of both amateur and professional.

They have begun the work by having the pupils at the secondary and higher schools taught the game as it should be played. The county associations, linked with the F.A., have, as a whole, heartily co-operated. The best brains and the best legs among old and respected players have become the teachers of these pupils. No fewer than 10,000 copies of a booklet, "Football—How to Succeed"—have been circulated, mostly in schools, but supplies have also been sent to Australia, Jamaica, Nova Scotia, and agencies other than schools. There is a book to be issued on Association Football—technical and instructional—next month. The price will be nominal, but the manual will be beyond any price because even who know have written these pages. A film, with spoken comments by authorities, is in process of preparation by a renowned company who make pictures. The Football Association are joint producers in the undertaking. Every device and aid are being introduced to make young athletes understand that there is a right way to kick, trap, control, and dribble a ball and to show that a football match is not a mere haphazard hurly-burly and that physical prowess is not, by any means always sure to be predominant.

PRACTICAL HELP: NOT ADVICE

A fresh dynamo of considerable power has been set in motion at the offices of the Football Association. This body has organised, and just held a Summer School of Football, although the title was an "Instructional Course in Association Football." As clubs, the members of the League, were not well represented, but there were over fifty of the coaches for schools, managers, and trainers of clubs, and they were given four days of lectures in the class rooms, and demonstrations on the field of the Duke of York's Headquarters at Chelsea. The teaching staff included the principal and lecturer of the Carnegie Physical Training College, (Leeds), Mr. James Hogan, Dr. Cove-Smith, the Rev. K. R. G. Hunt, Mr. F. N. S. Creek, Mr. J. R. Witty, and Mr. Norman Christie, the captain of Blackburn Rovers. The addresses were as practical as the field exercises, and every one expressed such appreciation of the course that the gathering is likely to become an event as each summer comes.

Graham, E. Hanne, Jesse Pennington, T. Sampy, Stanley Seymour, Edward Taylor (the goalkeeper), Eric Tomkins, D. R. Tremelling, and many another, even such moderns as John Lambert and John G. Bestall, were there. The final discussion proved how intelligently and keenly they had followed their lessons. They reminded one of the remark of Makepeace, who said, after coaching in Holland, that he had no idea, until put to the test, how much there was to impart, and how difficult it was to give instruction so that it could be mentally digested and reproduced in action.

There is no end to the efforts of the F.A. Norwich City applied for a loan of £14,000 to equip a new ground. The Association decided to accept the guarantee of the directors, collectively and personally, for a loan of £8,000 to be repaid by annual instalments of principal with interest at 3 per cent. over a period of fifteen years. The loan will commence when Norwich City has expended £7,000 on the new headquarters. There are other loans to clubs, both amateur and professional, but not of this magnitude. The F.A. have given £100 to the Universities Athletic Union toward the proposed tour to Hungary for students to take part in the international games. A desire was expressed at a conference of the four British Associations that a British International Championship Trophy should be held each year by the premier country in these isles. The F.A. offered to have such a vase made, and present it for competition. This will be inscribed: "The British International Championship Trophy. Presented by the Football Association in Commemoration of the Silver Jubilee of His Majesty, the King, 1935." This trinket will probably cost 100 guineas, but surely the honour of being the champion country is in itself beyond compare with any emblem, however artistic. International games should set an ideal, and not descend to the conventional bauble.

REJECTION OF DUAL CONTROL

The problem of refereeing is always with us and always will be, whatever may be done. The agitation for two referees has so far proved futile. In the midst of all the argument "about it and about," the F.A. was asked to decline to register any referee who had lost the sight of an eye. This request was complied with. No other course was possible. Can one eye be expected to do that which it is now contended only four eyes can do with satisfaction? Still, that very conservative group, the clubs of the Football League, endowed with votes, rejected the idea of appointing two referees for each of the matches during the approaching season. They refused to give the scheme even a trial. Yet it is said that this dual control is not yet a lost cause. The League clubs, however, are hard to convince, even if the chief advocates of the revolution are members of the Management Committee. For forty-seven years these clubs have never changed their opinion on certain matters. They are followers of the Medes and Persians.

The agitation rests upon the allegation that no one man can referee a League match without mistakes. Exactly, but that is not proof that two referees will be faultless. It might even be urged that the errors would be doubled. To seek perfection from the imperfect cannot be logical. On the same day that an expert referee was tried in England last season, Dr. F. J. Bauwens, of Cologne,

SWIMMING POOL IN AMOY OPENED

Miss Yeung Performed Function

Colour and pomp marked the opening of the newly constructed swimming pool financed by the local Chen-chiang Athletic Association this afternoon. Miss Yeung Sao-keung, China's foremost woman swimming star, came specially from Hong Kong to cut the ribbon to open the most modern and best equipped swimming pool in this swimming-conscious city. The ceremony was attended by over 7,000 people, including Mr. Wang Ku-pun, Mayor of Amoy, Dr. Lim Boon-kerf, President of Amoy University, and many foreign consular representatives.

An all-city swimming contest followed the opening ceremony. Miss Yeung and her companions from Hong Kong also gave an exhibition in fancy diving which won loud applause from the on-lookers.

was in charge of the international match between Wales and Ireland. It was said he was nearly infallible. There are Englishmen as competent even as Dr. Bauwens. The reports of the two referees who were in charge of the experiments made in England are not by any means satisfying concerning such a change.

FURTHER TRIAL

Dr. A. W. Barton thinks that there should be a further trial of a more serious character, but Mr. E. Wood, his colleague, is more definite, as he declares: "I have studied it very carefully, and while, no doubt, there are possibilities in the system, I cannot make up my mind that the time is yet for putting it into operation. I have tried to keep an open mind on the matter, and have to admit that the work of a referee is certainly made easier by the fact that he is able to be on the spot for vital decisions." Yet, say one or the other of these referees, there will certainly be attempts to make one referee reverse the decision of the other, that during a lull in each particular half of the field there is the danger that the mental concentration so essential to the referee is apt to lose its intensity, that on a very cold and wet afternoon a referee might not be able to maintain bodily warmth that neutral linesmen will still be needed, and that the two referees were, on occasion, in the way of the players. There are other points, but, reading these reports quite dispassionately, it becomes clear that Dr. Barton and Mr. E. Wood have not yet been convinced that dual control of a match must necessarily be an advance upon the present system. One conclusion is beyond argument—and that is that no alteration can be made in Law XIII without the prior consent of the International Board. It will not be easy to obtain the necessary majority of votes—that is four-fifths of the representatives present at any annual meeting in June.

The laws of the game were not seriously changed at the last meeting at Shandlin, but there was an alteration in Law XIII, by the interpolation of this sentence: "If the play has been stopped in consequence of ungentlemanly behaviour by a player, it must be resumed by a free-kick in favour of the opposite side." Answering questions which have been submitted, the International Board decided that a player or players may not be ordered off the field of play for an offence until the game has been started by a kick-off, and that in the event of misconduct by a player or players prior to the kick-off the referee must report such misconduct to the governing authority. These questions have been keenly debated at referees' meetings all over the country, because it so happened that a player who struck an opponent before a match commenced had been ordered to leave the dressing-room by the referee. By this decision it is laid down that the official has no power

RANGERS WIN

London, Aug. 14.
Playing in the First Division of the Scottish Football League today, Glasgow Rangers won from the Albion Rovers by two goals to one at Clifton Hill.

prior to the kick-off—a point that may interest those referees who have visited dressing-rooms and warned footballers, with an unpleasant notoriety, that they must conform to the law or they would be banished. In the past this has happened in exciting Cup-ties. No names mean no pack drill.

LAWN BOWLS CHAMPIONSHIP

C. G. Silva Beaten

The lawn bowls quarter final in the local championships, between B. W. Bradbury of the Craigengower Cricket Club and C. G. Silva, the Recrelo player, both of whom are considered to be leading opponents of the game, ended quite surprisingly, the former won comfortably by a margin of 12 shots.

The Craigengower player won the game by his brilliancy rather than through his consistency.

Silva was able to draw level with Bradbury after the latter had run into a comfortable lead in the sixth head.

With the score level on the eighth head, it was expected that play would have to be confined to Silva's department, especially as he had just scored a four.

Bradbury's brilliancy started and he played methodically if not skillfully to snatch two shots from Silva, thereby taking the lead again. He scored a single in the next head.

On the day's play Bradbury was the better man. He had Silva mastered practically during the whole game, and but for a couple of heads, when Silva tried to snatch the ascendancy the game was more or less in Bradbury's favour.

Bradbury was in irresistible form and was unbeatable on the day's play. The final standing was 21 shots to 9 in his favour.

J. C. BROWN THROUGH

On the C.S.C.C. ground J. C. Brown eliminated W. K. Way in the Open Singles Lawn Bowls Championship by 21 shots to 18.

Brown was the more consistent player of the two and his bowling left Way in a difficult position on more than one occasion.

Brown started with a single on the first head, and a possible on the next, followed with a 3 on the third head.

Way notched singles on the 4th and 5th heads respectively, with a 2 on the 6th head.

Thereafter Brown scored a single on the 7th and a three on the 9th and never looked back again.

On the whole the game was very keenly contested despite the fact that Brown was always on top. Way came in with some clever trailings at times.

Brown scored 7 singles, 2 twos, 2 threes and a possible as against Way's four singles and 6 twos. The game ended on the 22nd head.

DUNCAN WINS

At the Recrelo green yesterday, R. Duncan beat A. Macfarlane by 22 shots to 14, in the fourth round of the Open Singles Championship.

The opening stage of the game began with both players scoring singles alternately. On the fourth head Duncan scored a 3 to take the lead, but his opponent drew level with a double.

Duncan again took the lead with two singles, to which Macfarlane replied with a single, a 3 and a double, thereby depriving Duncan of the lead, which he regained on the next three heads with a 4 and 2 doubles.

Macfarlane tried hard to regain the leadership but he could only make a 3 and a single.

To this Duncan replied with two singles a 2 and a 3, winning the game with 22 shots against his opponent's 14.

Hallahan's Fine Work

New York, Aug. 14.
Once again the New York Baseball teams fared badly in their National and American League fixtures today, although the Giants, who are at the top of the former championship, won one of their matches against the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Giants were engaged in a double header with the Cardinals and lost second match through a personal feat by Hallahan, who not only blanked out the New York outfit but also scored a home run.

The Yankees went down to Cleveland Indians by a single run and, with Detroit Tigers winning their engagement easily from the Senators, the margin between the two top teams of the American League has been increased by today's matches.

The full results of today's fixtures follow:—

WOOD OIL AND PAINTProduction In China[Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).]

Nanking, Aug. 8.

China's export trade in wood oil and paint has shown a marked increase recently, according to Mr. Liang Shang-Tung, Director of the Commerce Department of the Ministry of Industry.

"Wood-oil being a special product of China and in great demand in the world market, the increase in its export is not surprising," Mr. Liang said.

It may be recalled that for many years natural lacquer and wood-oil have been extensively used in China for surfacing purposes. The former is produced abundantly in the provinces of Anhwei, Chekiang, Hunan, Hupeh, Kiangsi, Fukien, Szechuan, Kwangtung, Kwangsi, Kweichow, southern Shensi and southern Honan, and lacquerware from Fukien and Peking is well known on foreign markets. Wood-oil is largely produced in Szechuan, Hunan, Hupeh, and other provinces along the Yangtze and Pearl River Valley and has become one of the most important lines of Chinese exports. In spite of the continued economic depression and the recent American success in the cultivation of tung-trees, the export of wood-oil for 1934 still amounts to $36,216,689. Of these shipments more than 60 per cent. went to the United States, but owing to the steady increase in the area of tung-tree plantation, exports to that country tend to decline.

FOREIGN PAINT

The import of foreign paint into China is of comparatively recent origin, and owing to its increasing use Chinese paint factories were started in Shanghai, Hankow and Tientsin. In the latter city there are five such factories, whose output is steadily gaining popularity, and already dominates the local market. Of the five factories the China Paint and Pigment Company is the largest, being capitalized at $500,000. It employs more than 60 workers and several technical experts, and had several well-equipped departments, such as oil-refining, pigment, tin-making, labelling, and packing. The machinery used is being driven by 100 horse-power motors.

The output includes boiled oil, paste paint, enamel, varnish, floor enamel, flat wall paint, anti-corrosive paint, anti-fouling paint, and "dope" for airplanes. In addition to meeting the local demand, these products are marketed at Shanghai, Nanking, and Peking, with a branch factory established in the first city and trading agencies in the other two.

RAW MATERIALS

The raw materials used in manufacturing paint include drying-oils, gums, colours, driers, and solvents. Formerly, most of these materials were imported, but recently home supplies are obtain-

RACE FOR RUNS

At The Oval

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 29.
Lancashire gained a splendid victory over Surrey at the Oval by eight wickets. E. R. T. Holmes, the Surrey captain, made a sporting declaration which left Lancashire with 240 to win—runs they got in two hours 50 minutes.

Greatest praise for Lancashire's success must go to Washbrook, who hit up 80 out of 136, obtained with Hopwood for the opening partnership in 95 minutes. Washbrook cut, pulled and drove like a master when getting eleven 4's.

In comparison, Hopwood, second to leave at 157, was nearly two hours over his 56, and hit only three boundaries, which came in his first 17 runs. After he left, Paynter and Oldfield treated the bowling so light-heartedly that they cleared off the remaining 83 in 45 minutes.

Paynter showed his best form in a stay of 65 minutes. Like Washbrook, he made nearly all his runs in front of the wicket with wristy strokes, which brought him seven 4's.

SHANGHAI BOWLS

Rinks Semi-Final

Shanghai, Aug. 12.

The semi-final of the S.L.B.A. rinks championship between D. Ramsay (skip), J. E. Harvey, R. C. Aitkenhead, N. Churchill (Yang-tseppo Bowling Club) and F. O. Madar (skip), G. N. Manley, A. J. Willis, W. Manley (Shanghai Recreation Club), on the Police green yesterday afternoon, was stopped by a sudden downpour when only five ends had been played. The match had promised to be a very interesting one.

Until the closure play had been very keen, with both fours bowling exceptionally well. Madar took the first two ends with singles, Ramsay taking the third with a single and the fourth end went to Madar also with a single. At the 5th Ramsay got a 2, bringing the score all square at 3 shots, then the rain came down and prevented further play.

The match will be resumed on Thursday at 4.45 p.m. on the Police green, at the point where the game was abandoned, i.e. they will start at the 6th end with the score level at 3 shots all.

TO AVERT A
NAVAL RACEProgramme Of Needs

(Special Air Mail Service)

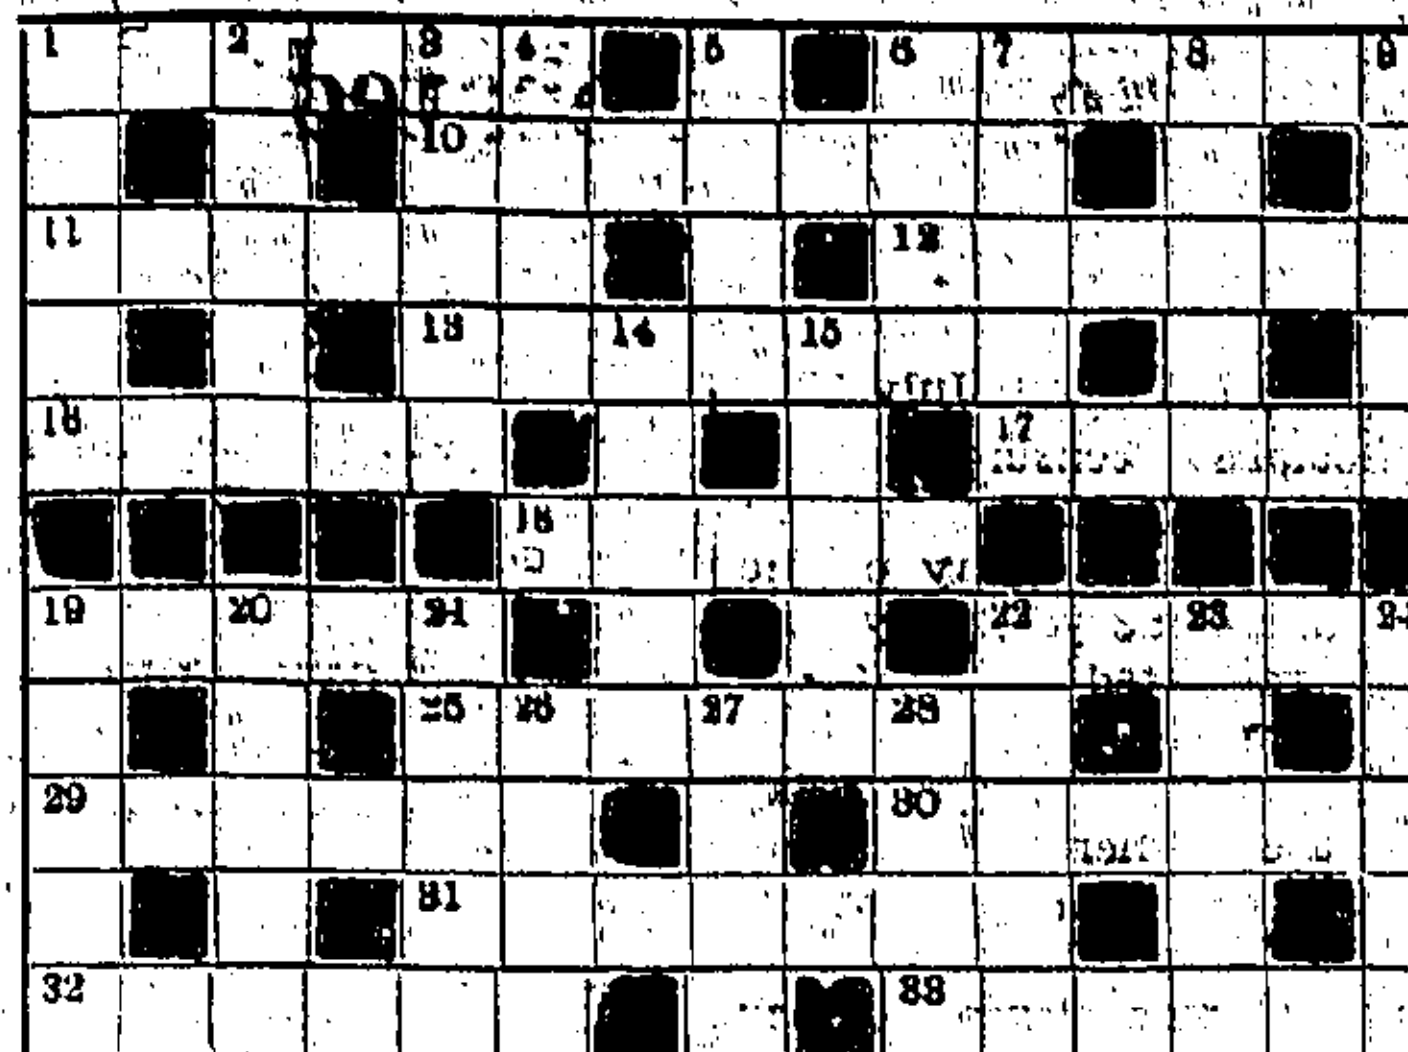

London, July 29.

A new chapter in international naval relations was opened by the First Lord's statement on Monday. For 14 years, naval strengths have been determined by the ratio principle put forward by the United States at the Conference of 1921. This chapter is now closed. Nearly a year ago Japan made it clear that she would no longer accept a position of inferiority at sea to the United States, and with her denunciation of the Washington Treaty all prospect of maintaining the ratio system in its old form came to an end. What is to take its place? Britain is the first sea Power to attempt an answer to this question. Her proposal is that there should be an exchange of programmes up to the year 1942 and she has applied her idea in her own negotiations with Germany. Ultimately this proposal involves the acceptance of the French thesis, maintained at the Conference of 1930, that there is such a thing as "absolute" defence. If all the Powers confine themselves to programmes satisfying their absolute needs—we ourselves for example, as is suggested by our Naval Correspondent, putting our main effort into cruisers to protect our trade—no one Power will feel its security menaced. Alternatively, if any Power considers itself threatened by another Power's programme, the matter can be thrashed out at the Conference due to assemble next year.

AN ARMS RACE

The British plan is evidently a great advance on the pre-war system under which every sea Power framed an annual programme in the light of other Powers' naval estimates. That way led straight to an arms race, whereas the new way, if it proved practicable, would stabilise naval construction for a term of years. There are, however, substantial difficulties to be overcome. The ratio system did not fix naval strengths. It only provided an agreed principle on the basis of which programmes could be drawn up. If we now begin at the other end and take the programmes first, do we not eventually find ourselves confronted with ratios? The Admiralty apparently thinks not. Each fleet will have its own function, to discharge and will equip itself with vessels designed to discharge it. Japan, however, is sceptical. She is reluctant to announce a long-term programme which might leave her inferior to the United States, and if she insists on parity with America an arms race in the Pacific must needs follow. Now that Britain, following Japan's lead and going beyond it, has abandoned the principle which America devised, Washington finds itself in a difficulty. Presumably this aspect of the matter was not overlooked by the British Admiralty. Nothing could be farther from the wishes of the British people than that a change of policy, imposed, as we think, by circumstances, should cloud our relations with the United States.

SYSTEM OF COINAGE

Urgent Need

Shanghai, Aug. 10.

That China's currency is most chaotic and stands in immediate need of reform, does not admit of the slightest doubt. It is equally clear that a chaotic currency acts as a brake on the development of trade and industry. The National Government, however, has been gradually introducing reforms into the Chinese currency system during the last few years.

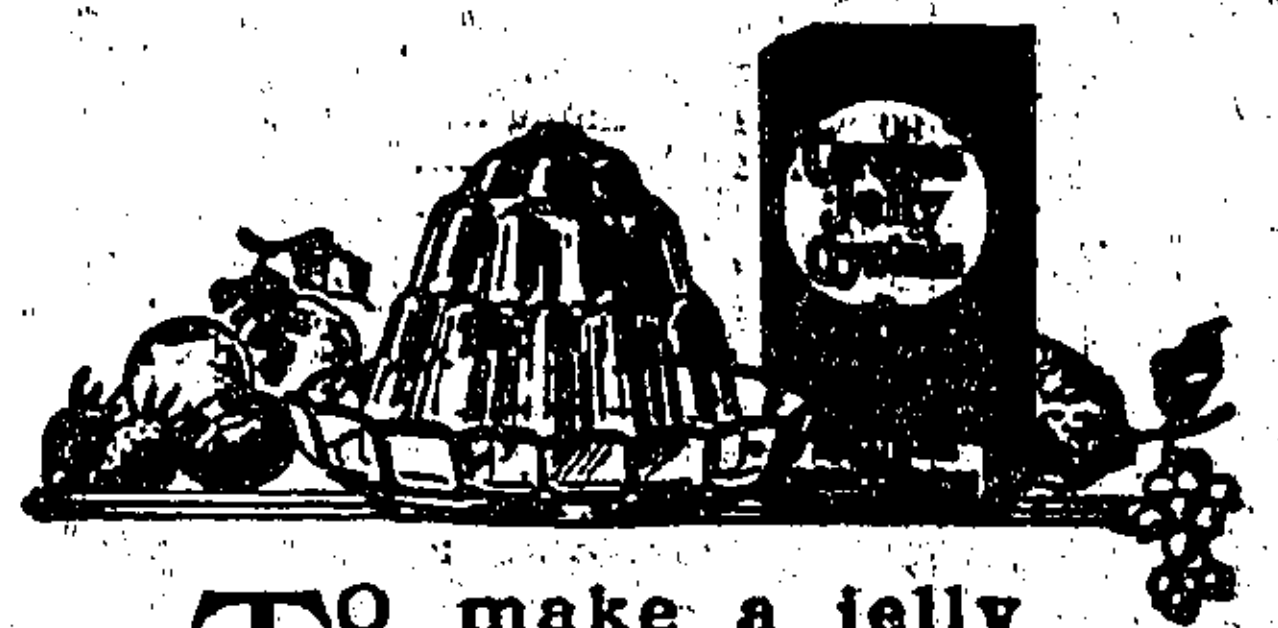

Concrete proposals dealing with monetary reforms and allied economic problems will be the chief subject of discussion to-day at a comprehensive gathering of more than 50 Chinese economists who will meet to-day at the Central Bank of China under the chairmanship of Dr. H. H. Kung, Minister of Finance.

The Experts

Among the experts who have arrived for the conference are Dr. D. K. Liu, Messrs. Liang Su-Min, Chow Yi-Chun, Dao Meng-Huo, Yang Tuan-Liu, Li Tans, Ren Hsueh-Pei, Chin Fen, secretary-general of the National Economic Council, Dr. Y. S. Tsao and others.

Dr. H. H. Kung arrived here from Nanking yesterday morning and attended the conference. During the afternoon press interview, Dr. Kung stated that an end to miscellaneous coins in China and their replacement by a system of nickel subsidiary coins is one of the many monetary reforms planned by the Central Government. China's monetary problems, Dr. Kung said, have been and are being given careful consideration and it is planned to make definite steps after further study. Among these steps will be the gradual withdrawal of all miscellaneous coins now in circulation and their reminting into a standard coin to be circulated throughout the nation. It is also planned, the finance minister continued, to mint coins of 5-cent, 10-cent and 50-cent denominations.

In concluding the interview, Dr. Kung again firmly denied rumors that the Chinese Government would adopt inflationary measures. The Government's plan to withdraw subsidiary coins may have given rise to these rumors, he stated, but they are absolutely without foundation.

INDUSTRIAL DEPRESSION

Motion Debated

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, July 28. The Socialist censure motion on industrial depression was down on the Orders of the Day of the House of Commons yesterday, and it will be reprinted as an Order for some days. That is the result of Tuesday night's fiasco, when the motion was "talked out" and no division was taken. Because it was eleven o'clock and a member was still talking, the Speaker had to adjourn the debate. The state of Parliamentary business will not, however, allow it to be resumed.

CAUGHT NAPPING

Mr. Lansbury was under the impression that the rule bringing debates to an end sharp at eleven o'clock had been suspended. It had, but only for Government business. A motion of censure is, perhaps, naturally, not Government business.

If Mr. Lansbury had realised that, he would have moved "that the question be now put," and a division would have been taken. As it was, he and his colleagues sat back to listen to Mr. Harold Macmillan attacking the Minister of Labour, and censured him on. When the Speaker terminated the debate they had a nasty shock.

DID HE MEAN TO?

An argument still going on is whether or not Mr. Macmillan knew that he was "talking out" the motion. Some M.P.s think he was under the same misapprehension as the Labour party. Others assign him more cunning. They say that, having his own "New Deal" proposals ready to submit to the Government and the country, he was anxious that he and his supporters should not at that stage have to vote either for or against the Government.

BEST OF BOTH WORLDS

Mr. Robert Menzies, the Commonwealth Attorney-General, is, I fear, making the best of both worlds. In Australia, where men call a spade a spade, he pronounces his name as it is written. In Perthshire, however, a Menzies is a Minglis if he wishes for life with honour.

During his visit to his fellow clansmen at Aberfeldy, therefore, Mr. Robert Menzies tactfully adapted the proverb of doing as the Romans do when in Rome. To-morrow Mr. Menzies—as London and Australia know him—returns to work. He and other representatives of Australia are meeting British Ministers on the question of beef imports to this country in 1935.

The views of the Argentine Government are awaited by both countries.

PLEASANT IMPRISONMENT

Lord Wakefield supplemented his presentation of the Brass Crosby Cup to the Lord Mayor—to which I referred yesterday—by a print of that famous predecessor of Sir Stephen Killick.

The original, which hangs in the dining room of the "Daily Telegraph" office, was painted by R. E. Pine, the son of the great 18th century engraver, while Brass Crosby was in the Tower, part of which can be seen in my reproduction to-day.

The Lord Mayor's incarceration was not a very rigorous one. Besides sitting for his portrait he was allowed to receive as many of his friends, supporters, and even political opponents as he liked. His imprisonment was also beguiled by his being able to witness eulogies of the Speaker—who, as the representative of the House of Commons, was responsible for his incarceration—burnt outside the Tower.

THE MEMBER COMES HOME.

An intimate political gathering will take place at the Guildhall, Worcester, on Saturday.

Mr. Baldwin is then to address his Bewdley constituents for the 27th year running. It will also be the 43rd year of Baldwinian representation, as Mr. Stanley Baldwin succeeded his father, Mr. Alfred Baldwin, in 1908.

Mr. Alfred Baldwin had sat for Bewdley for 16 years, during which time he had only once been opposed.

The Prime Minister, I understand, will make a "Member's Speech" this year. He will talk to his followers as the member for Bewdley on subjects of local rather than national interest.

SIR GEOFFREY WHISKARD

New Appointment

London, Aug. 14. The Dominions Office has announced that the Government has decided to appoint a High Commissioner in the Commonwealth of Australia, with functions comparable to those discharged in the United Kingdom by the High Commissioners for Canada and South Africa.

Sir Geoffrey Granville Whiskard, Assistant Under-Secretary for Dominion Affairs, has been selected to be the first High Commissioner, and he will leave England for Canberra early next year to take up his new post.

The new High Commissioner has been Under-Secretary at the Dominions Office since 1930 and Vice-Chairman of the Oversea Settlement Committee since 1928. He entered the Home Office in 1911, and was Principal Private Secretary to successive Secretaries of State from 1915 to 1920. He was from 1920 to 1922 Assistant Secretary at the Chief Secretary's Office, Dublin Castle, and served in the Colonial Office from 1922 to 1925 and in the Dominions Office from 1925 to 1929. He accompanied the Dominion Secretary on the latter's visit to Canada, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa in 1927-28.

GERMAN COUPLE

Spend Honeymoon At Margate

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

London, Aug. 14. Thousands saw the Mayor and Mayoress of Margate give an official welcome to a newly wed German couple, who arrived at the popular British seaside resort yesterday.

Under an agreement between Margate and Cologne, the happy pair from the famous Rhine city are spending their honeymoon at Margate, while a corresponding English couple are now on their way to Cologne.

After an address of welcome, the Mayor of Margate read a message from the Chief Burgomaster of Cologne, who pointed out that these visits would strengthen the ties between Great Britain and Germany, and particularly between Margate and Cologne.

ROYSTERERS ROUTED

As the result of Sir John Dashwood's gift to the National Trust of Church Hill, at West Wycombe, the "Hell Fire Club" has come into prominence once more. In the days of his 18th century predecessor, Sir Francis Dashwood, this was the club's headquarters.

Modern historians are inclined to the belief that the orgies and general wickedness of the members of the "Hell Fire Club" were much exaggerated by local tradition.

There is a story that Wilkes, plucked by his failure to obtain admission to the small inner ring of this exclusive, if disreputable, society, planned a revenge.

When the members were drunkenly celebrating a black Mass in the ruins of Wycombe Abbey, Wilkes let loose an ape among them.

The sight of the animal, which to their clouded vision appeared to be the Being in whose honour the Mass was being held, was too much for the roysterers, who ran for their lives.

UNASPIRING ARYAN

My recent note on the "pagan" personal advertisements in Gen. Ludendorff's paper has brought me a somewhat similar one from the "Muenchener Neueste Nachrichten." It runs:

"52 years old, purely Aryan, doctor, member of the Tannenberg League, wishes male issue through a registrar's marriage with a healthy, wholly-Aryan, unaspiring, housewife young woman who wears low-heeled shoes and no earrings and is accustomed to heavy work, preferably without means."

Why, I wonder, preferably without means?

HELP FOR THE UNEMPLOYED
Government Scheme

London, Aug. 14.

The plans for the settlement of unemployed on land which the commissioners, appointed by the Government to look after the unemployable, are encouraging, and have to take a number of different forms according to local and other circumstances.

Glamorgan-shire County Council is co-operating with the Commissioner on a scheme for about a thousand, quarter acre holdings for unemployed men from South Wales coalfields.

It is not expected that the man can become economically self-supporting on these holdings and the Unemployment Assistance Board has agreed that unemployment allowances should continue.

The object is to give men with small prospect of getting back into employment, a stimulus to activity and self-respect and the opportunity of supplementing their standard of living by their own efforts.

They will be provided with tools, chickens, pigs, poultry-houses and says and they will make a weekly payment for rent.

After the first year, holders will pay back in three annual instalments a sum of £12 which is the cost to start them. Already over 500 applications for holdings have been received.

SEVEN NUNS
Charged With Smuggling

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Berlin, Aug. 14.

The tenth trial of members of the Catholic Orders for offences against the foreign currency control regulations took place here yesterday, when seven nuns from the cloisters of various parts of Germany had to answer charges of smuggling a total of 22,000 marks over the frontier, to assist the distress of cloisters in other countries, or to pay off their debts.

One nun named Birkhahn received a sentence of four months imprisonment and 1,800 marks fine, while the other six nuns were sentenced to fines ranging from 1,200 to 4,000 marks.

BIG FOREST FIRE

Spokane, Aug. 14.

With thousands of deer, bears, rabbits and other wild animals stampeding in terror before a wall of roaring flames, 1,000 forest fire-fighters are battling against a blaze which has already demolished thousands of acres of timber in three states, Montana, Idaho and Oregon.

It is feared that many animals are perishing in the fire.

WHAT IS FUN?

Shanghai, Aug. 12. Advised by a frantic Chinese passer-by at about midnight on Saturday that he had seen a suspicious-looking foreigner holding a pistol behind a telephone pole in Broadway, a police officer attached to the Wayside Station hurriedly searched the thoroughfare and found a French sailor leaping walking on the pavement towards Yangtsepo district.

It must be mentioned here that a dramatic touch, worthy of any thrilling detective story, had been furnished the incident when the Chinese pedestrian, in giving his information to the officer, said he had seen the face and pistol when the foreigner was lighting a cigarette. The appearance of the sailor, answering the description given by the Chinese, the former was obliged to follow the officer to the Wayside Station.

Questions were put to the sailor, but the language difficulty further complicated matters. In response to a call from the Settlement, a French police officer travelled to the Station. The sailor submitted to a search. A "pistol" was found in his possession.

All that was needed was a little demonstration. The sailor had lit his cigarette with the "weapon" thus! He was allowed to return to his vessel with the lighter without further delay.

"Always Tired?"

"YOU must strengthen your nerves with SANATOGEN"

"Revitalize your nerves by taking Sanatogen." That is what your doctor will advise you, when listlessness, lack of appetite, or fretful sleep are robbing you of your health and joy of life.

For physicians know that all these complaints have their roots in one and the same cause: weakness of the nerves. And it is only by strengthening your nerves, that you can regain your former health and vitality.

Strengthen your nerves with Sanatogen—the true tonic-food. Sanatogen contains the very elements that build bodily health and vital strength—phosphorus and protein. Sanatogen will make you feel stronger, healthier and consequently happier—even after a short course.

"I never hesitate to recommend Sanatogen to my patients in case of nervous exhaustion, and it gives very beneficial results. I do not obtain such results with the usual tonics."

writes a well-known English physician.

Over 25,000 physicians have given Sanatogen similar enthusiastic recommendations, because Sanatogen must do good. Start taking it to-day, then you will soon enjoy once again the feeling of radiant vitality and strength, that makes life worth living.

THE DANZIG GULDEN

New Understanding With Poland?

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Danzig, Aug. 14.
Further progress has been made towards the settlement of controversial economic questions which had arisen from the recent devaluation of the Danzig guilder and had led to serious conflict with Poland.

It is officially announced here on Wednesday that the Danzig Delegation composed of leading economic experts will proceed to Warsaw at the end of this week for negotiations with the Polish Government which it is hoped will result in the bringing about of a complete understanding.

It will be recalled that the customs dispute between Danzig and Poland which had threatened to paralyse the Free City's trade was amicably settled last week by a provisional agreement and it is proposed to extend this agreement so that it may provide a solid basis for future economic relations between the two neighbouring states.
